CITY MAN LED PATROL

Jack Richardson Hit Five Times

Gallant Sergeant, Now in Hospital, Fought
Off Attacks, Helped Casualties, Directed Fire

By BILL BOSS, Canadian Press Staff Writer
WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Oct. 29 (CP)—
The name on everyone's lips when the patrol was over was that of its leader—25-year-old Sgt. John H. Richardson, of 2733 Somass Drive, Victoria.

Richardson, who quit an officers' training course to come to Korea with his unit, fought off one attack, suffered five wounds, fought off a second attack, directed the withdrawal, helped two casualties part of the way and guided artillery and mortar fire being sent down to help the operation.

"Judging from the letter I received from him Tuesday, John is doing alright in the Commonwealth Division hospital in Japan," said a happy mother, Mrs. Helen Richardson, 2733 Somass, today.

She said that her war-hero son is only a bit worried about his hearing. Among the five wounds by shrapnel was a piece of metal that pierced his ear. Mrs. Richardson hopes her son will be returned home after his release from hospital. The sergeant's letters indicated he had been through a gruelling grind of night patrols before the wounding.

The 26-man patrol from the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was out to catch a prisoner on the night of October 15-16. Instead, they lost two men to the Chinese—the first two Patricia's listed missing in almost two years in Korea.

Patrol Deployed in Two Groups

Leaving L. Cpl. William E. Johnstone of Westville, N.S., and Calgary, in charge of the second party, Richardson went ahead with Sgt. Rhodes (Rocky) Prentice of Toronto and Calgary, the sniper sergeant, and Cpl. Don Hastings of Vancouver and Calgary, one of Prentice's snipers.

The trio established that the Chinese were working right on their objective and withdrew 100 yards to Johnston's position, where Richardson radioed fire orders.

Before he'd finished issuing

Reds Determined to Take Prisoner

It was as though the Chinese were determined to get a prisoner, and one able to talk, said Cameron.

"It was really hot and heavy there for five minutes. Their men emptied their burp-gun magazines over and over and our fellows answered the fire whenever they got the chance. It was an old-fashioned fight above the ground."

Richardson, Hastings, Prentice, Johnstone and the signaler—Pte. F. M. Holloway of Vancouver—were wounded.

The surprised Canadians fought

Grenade Separates Retreating Men

But Richardson, who had been supporting Prentice on one side and Hastings on the other, was separated from them by the blast of a concussion grenade.

Groping in the darkness, he found Prentice and drew him aside. He could not find Hastings. Nor could the other men find Johnstone, who had been severely injured.

Richardson held up the withdrawal while the ground was searched thoroughly, and finally ordered the men back.

It was a laborious process. Nine were wounded, some severely, and they had to improvise stretchers. About 800 yards back they joined forces with Pacha's men.

B.C. GRANTS PERMITS FOR TWO WINERIES

New Plants at Abbotsford, Sumas

The provincial government has given two companies permission to construct wineries in British Columbia—the first in more than 20 years.

B.C. Wineries Ltd. will build a winery at Sumas, and Pacific Wine Growers at Abbotsford.

The first has been given permission to manufacture 300,000 gallons annually, and the second 100,000 from grapes grown in the province.

The permits will increase the number of B.C. wineries to six. The four existing establishments were operating before the section of the liquor act governing wineries was enacted in 1930. Thus, the province has never actually issued a winery permit before.

The Pacific winery will be operated by Saul Morris and Nathan Kaganoff, Vancouver, brothers who previously operated a winery in B.C. from 1938 to 1942.

The B.C. winery has as a director Jacob G. Derksen, Vancouver.

C.P.R. SEEN REPLACING LOST KATHLEEN

Unconfirmed reports that the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. is negotiating for a ship to replace Ss. Princess Kathleen, lost in Alaskan waters Sept. 7, are circulating around Victoria's waterfront.

It is thought the ship, now at Boston, is about 400 feet long, and the price is believed to be near the $4,000,000 mark.

The general feeling in shipping circles here is "we hope it is true."

St. Lawrence Power Project Is Approved

Joint Commission Gives Green Light

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (CP)—
The International Joint Commission today announced approval of a $400,000,000 power project under the St. Lawrence seaway and hydro plan.

The Canada-United States power project involving the Ontario government and possibly the New York State Power Authority is part of the $700,000,000 seaway and hydro development.

Application to go ahead with the power phase of the seaway project was made jointly to the International Commission by Canada and the United States.

The Ontario government will act as Canada's agent in the 2,200-horse-power hydro project while the New York State Power Authority is expected to be the U.S. government agency.

Announcement of approval for the power plan followed closed executive sessions of the six-man commission Tuesday and today and earlier hearings in Canada and the U.S.

The announcement was made by Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton and A. O. Stanley, respectively Canadian and United States co-chairmen of the commission.

Under the hydro plan, as approved, the Ontario and New York state governments would share equally the $400,000,000 cost of development of the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River. They would also share power production equally.

Approval of the power phase by the commission left the Canadian government committed to undertake alone the $300,000,000 St. Lawrence navigational plan. Aim of the navigational plan is to provide a 27-foot waterway for ocean-going ships from Montreal to Lake Erie.

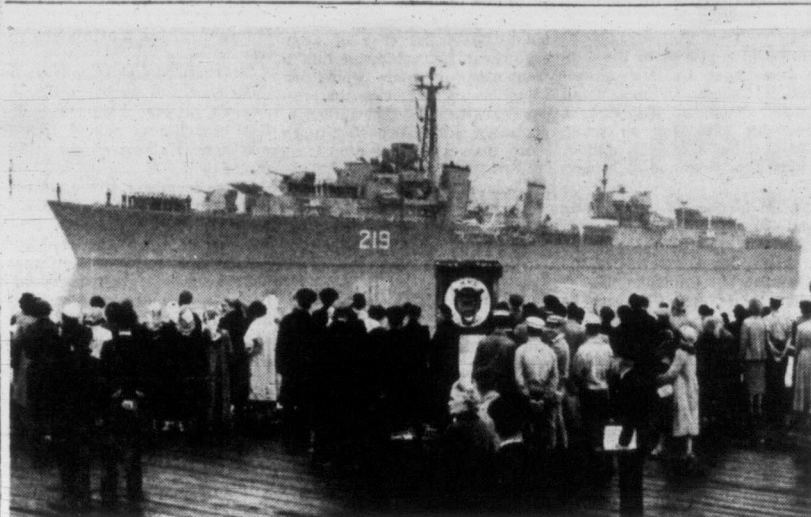

The U.S. Congress has turned down proposals for a joint seaway undertaking.

French Budget $4,000,000,000

PARIS, Oct. 29 (Reuters)—
Defense Minister Rene Pleven today presented a defense budget for 1953 of more than $4,000,000,000, of which about 15 per cent will be footed by the United States.

Pleven said $3,491,000,000 would come from French resources. The remaining $607,000,000, "it was hoped," would be provided through U.S. aid.

'Atha-B' Off on Third Korean Duty Tour

It was "third time at bat" for H.M.C.S. Athabaskan as she left Esquimalt Harbor at 10 a.m. today, bound for another long tour of duty in Korean waters. She will take part in coastal patrols and shore bombardments. A small, solemn group of friends and relatives silently watched her leave. (See story page 17. Times Photo.)

Canadians Win $56,000 Prizes

Three Hold Tickets on Sunny Brae, Toronto Couple Wins $28,000

By the Canadian Press
Three Canadians held Irish Sweepstakes tickets on Sunny Brae, which finished second today in the Cambridge-shire run at Newmarket, Eng. They won prizes of $56,000 each.

No Canadian was listed as holding a ticket on Richer, the winner, worth $140,000. But a Toronto couple won $28,000 when Garrison Hack finished third.

Two Ontario residents and one in Moose Jaw, Sask., were the second place winners.

Mrs. Robert Meehan, wife of a storekeeper at Erin, Ont., held a ticket on Sunny Brae under the nom de plume of "Precious Girls," named for her two young daughters.

An unidentified Brantford, Ont., resident, who used the nom de plume "Stymie" held a similar winner.

Geoffrey R. Baskwill of Moose Jaw, manager of the Saskatchewan government woolen mill, held a ticket on Sunny Brae under the nom de plume "Irene."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrowell of Toronto held a ticket on Garrison Hack.

The 10-to-1 co-favorites, Cap of Gold and Andryde, finished well back.

Richer was well behind during the early stages of the running, in which Hilltop and Pink Jasper cut out a fast pace on the heavy going.

The eventual winner began to move up at the halfway mark and was nearly even with the leaders three furlongs from home.

Richer shot out of the bunch with two furlongs to go and easily held off the fast-finishing Sunny Brae.

The winning purse was only $9,846, but the outcome of the race determined millions in bets and prizes.

Holders of Irish sweepstakes tickets on the first three got $140,000, $56,000 and $28,000 respectively.

The race also decided millions in Britain's traditional big betting double. The first leg is the Caesarswick, won earlier in the month by a 33-to-1 shot, Flush Royal.

Running times at the Newmarket track are not announced until the end of the day's racing.

Alleged Robber May Have Had Heart Attack

CALGARY, Oct. 29 (CP)—
R.C.M.P. in Calgary have asked prison authorities in Vancouver for a medical history on Edward Tompkins 37, whose body was delivered Friday to a Hanna undertaking parlor less than an hour after a $1,600 safe blowing was discovered in the town.

It is believed Tompkins, also known to police as "Slim" Bekins, died from a heart attack while making a getaway from the town located 135 miles east of Calgary. His alleged partner, who is still at large, took the body to the Hanna hospital and then to the undertaking parlor. After that the alleged partner disappeared in a 1950 Chevrolet sedan, dark blue in color and bearing Saskatchewan license plates No. 17031.

An autopsy is being conducted in Calgary on the dead man. The findings have not yet been given to R.C.M.P. but are expected today.

The missing man is described as five feet eight inches in height, wearing a sport jacket and blazer. The car in which he drove away from Hanna is registered in the name of Thomas Grant of Saskatoon, and registration for the vehicle was found on the dead man's fingerprints.

R.C.M.P. today said no trace has been found of the car or the alleged accomplice. The search being carried out in all western provinces.

That feller who went over th' Goldstream bank in his car an' walked away from th' wreck must feel somethin' like th' ol' line parties after th' last provincial election.

Convicts Turn 3 Guards Free; New Outbreak

332 Prisoners at Menard Hold Out

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 29 (AP)—Three of the 10 guards held hostage in a series of uprisings at Menard State Prison were released today after a conference between Acting Governor Sherwood Dixon and rebellious convicts in the psychiatric division.

None of the three guards was harmed. They were released after Dixon agreed to permit reporters to listen to complaints by the psychiatric convicts.

Still holding out with seven hostages in another section of the prison, the east cell block, are 332 prisoners who launched the rebellion at the prison Monday.

These inmates tried today to set fire to a tower manned by guards and police. As this was happening, another guard rushed up to warder Jerome Munie and shouted: "What will we do—shoot? We need more help."

NO SHOOTING
Munie ordered no shooting but sent more guards to the area.

The disorder followed a new outbreak of rebellion Tuesday afternoon in the prison's psychiatric division. Most of 300 psychiatric inmates were herded back to cells after storming the kitchen-dining room. But 38 armed themselves with kitchen cutlery, seized three unarmed officers released today as hostages and barricaded themselves in the mess hall.

The angry prisoners in the five-story east cell house have been without water since Monday afternoon. And they have had little food. Their hostages have had no food or water.

NO POWER SHORTAGE ON ISLAND
Victoria and Vancouver Island are in a happy position regarding electric power in comparison with their water-short neighbors to the south.

"There is no concern on our part," a B.C. Electric official said today. "We have been conserving water at Jordan River, and expect that rain in the next six weeks will be sufficient to meet our needs."

R.C. Power Commission officials reported the Lower Campbell Lake shortage area for the John Hart development in "good shape."

The commission meets all Vancouver Island power needs north of Victoria, and delivers a considerable quantity of power to the B.C. Electric here.

"We're not suffering at all," a commission engineer said.

Dixie Crosby Still in Coma

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 29.—Members of the Crosby family were gathered today at the bedside of Dixie Crosby, wife of crooner Bing Crosby. Mrs. Crosby was reported in critical condition. She lapsed into a coma Tuesday.

Unions Back 34 Democrats Among 35 Senators Running

(Compiled from AP and UP Dispatches)

A politically-conscious labor movement and the traditionally "solid" south were seen today as key factors in the U.S. presidential election to be held Tuesday.

Labor's political leaders are lined up solidly behind Democratic candidates for the senate, with one exception, a United Press survey disclosed today.

Political organizations of the A.F.L., C.I.O. and United Mine Workers—all supporting the Stevenson-Sparkman presidential ticket—are also trying to fill the 35 open senate seats with 34 Democrats.

The one exception is Republican Sen. William Langer of North Dakota, described by union spokesmen as a "friend of labor" during his 12 years in the senate. They claim the North Dakota Republican has gone "down the line" for labor in his voting record, including opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act.

The only other "concession" to the Republicans comes from the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. While supporting Democrats in most races, its leaders are "neutral" in the New York senate race between G.O.P. Sen. Irving M. Ives and Democrat John Cashmore.

However, 17 other railway unions, making up railway labor's political league, are backing Cashmore over the incumbent Ives.

Going Down Line in Key States

State and local groups of the A.F.L. Labor League for Political Action and the C.I.O. Political Action Committee are going down the line together for the Democratic ticket in all the key states—although in some states they have not officially endorsed Democrats for the senate.

Among the incumbent senators labor is particularly anxious to defeat are Joseph E. McCarthy of Wisconsin, Harry P. Cain of Washington and James P. Kem of Missouri. Against McCarthy, the unions are backing Thomas E. Fairchild; in Missouri they are behind Stuart Symington, and for the senate seat from Washington they are campaigning for Rep. Henry M. Jackson.

Among those seeking their first senate terms, with A.F.L. and C.I.O. support, are Michael Disalle of Ohio, Thomas Mechling of Nevada and Rep. John Kennedy of Massachusetts. They are working in Michigan for Sen. Blair Moody, who is seeking his first elective term after being appointed to fill the vacancy created by the death of Arthur H. Vandenberg.

John L. Lewis is concentrating on senate races in the coal-producing states. The U.M.W. has no directive. While for Langer, it is backing Democrats in Kentucky, Maryland, Montana, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

In those states, the mine union's political wing is calling for the defeat of senate Republican incumbents John W. Brickner, Harry F. Byrd, Va.; James P. Kem, Mo., and William E. Jenner, Ind.

Hope Ike Can Break Solid South

More than 80 per cent of the top officeholders in the south have rallied behind Adlai Stevenson in his Democratic bid for the presidency, an Associated Press survey showed today.

These political leaders include Dixie governors, U.S. Senators, and members of the House of Representatives who have given their support to the Illinois governor.

Even so, several conspicuous defections of the south have rallied behind Adlai Stevenson in his Democratic bid for the presidency, an Associated Press survey showed today.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

If you stand on the corner of Despard and Richmond and face southeast, you'll see a fine stand of big trees that look like cottonwoods down by Chandler Avenue. That's probably as close as you should go if you have any boyhood illusions of Pemberton Woods 25 or 30 years ago.

In those days they formed a small forest. Myself, I fought Indians that back then, and hunted buffalo on the adjoining plains—leastways, if I remember boyhood, that's what we pretended to do.

Pemberton Woods was a wilderness. Gonzales Avenue was a dirt trail shadowed under the branches of big maples whose limbs stretched across it. You could slip from the path, climb over a moss-covered log and seem as far off in the wilds as Alexander Mackenzie.

You might have gone into the woods on an autumn day in that distant age and watched the winged seeds of maples spiral down from the trees. You might have picked the trees tinted leaves for that inevitable juvenile school painting lesson featuring Canada's emblem.

If you'd been alone, you'd have known some of quiet of forest serenity—a little frightening but impressive.

I walked down Gonzales Avenue yesterday. The winged maple seeds still spiral down the rather pathetic trees that grow by its side. The seeds fall on the tar surface of the road, where the leaves are ground to a brown pulp. There isn't much wilderness there now.

You start at the east end, where a great oak was dying 30 years ago, and where a small owl poked a wise head from a hole in its bole. You admire the house and grounds, the late "Cappy" Goodlake developed near that site. You stop to talk with H. G. Mangin next door, praise his fine stand of pampas grass, and join in his hopes that further development won't destroy the natural park that comes up to the back of his lot.

The Squirrels Are Gone

Thinking of boyhood you ask him if there are still squirrels in the woods, and you're a little sad when he tells you they're gone. But, he says, there's a raccoon around, and he has to keep his chickens penned close to protect them from it.

You move westward through what was once a dense grove of trees and now is broken ground, with a few oaks and maples, dead at the top, reminding you of past grandeur—and you look at house development proceeding.

You think of the old days when the woods were a barrier between Foul Bay district and the hostile hockey and baseball players of Bank Street—the Leasons, Red Lawson, the Carbetts, Clin Chatton and the boys whose teams Foul Bay used to lick "reg'lar."

When you reach Despard and Richmond you turn and look back, glad to see there's still forest growth to the northeast, where Runnymede cuts in, unseen from your vantage point.

Then, if you're interested enough, you may go down to see Cyril Jones at the City Hall to find out what area the engineer's department is recommending to the city for preservation as a park. He'll indicate the section where the plan for Runnymede extension curves into Richmond and where there are still good trees, and point to another wedge just south of Richmond and Gonzales where a pie-slice is suggested as a playground.

For Bird Watchers

You'll be given a lift when he tells you his hopes that the council will reserve another small piece where a resident has developed a spot for bird watchers, and you'll appreciate his point as he discusses subdivisions.

The fact is, Cyril says, the city is anxious to make subdivisions in a way that will pay for the developments needed. It's possible, he thinks, to do that without eliminating all the park land. In his official capacity he can't come right out and agree with you that it's a shame the old woods have been carved up as they have been and will be carved up some more.

So you walk out, troubled by the disillusionment of the short hike down the road called Gonzales that once used to be a trail through the woods. You think of starting a new society. You'd call it Victorians Against the March of Progress.

You won't, of course. But you might still remind the city council when it's out subdividing, that people may make houses out of trees, but they can't make trees out of houses.

Red P.O.W.'s Planning Escape Beaten by Pals

PRISONER OF WAR COMMAND, Korea, Oct. 29 (AP)—The United Nations prisoner of war command headquarters today said five Communist P.O.W.'s were beaten Monday by fellow prisoners at a camp at Yongchon, Korea.

The announcement said the five apparently were trying to formulate plans to escape when other prisoners and a compound representative found them.

The incident occurred in a common housing officers who have sworn they would resist forcibly repatriation to Communist territory.

Canada to Seek Increase in Price of Wheat

Trade Minister Howe Discloses Plans For Demand Before Conference in Jan.

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (BUP)—Canada will ask the 44 nations in the international wheat agreement for higher prices "and we shall not be easily satisfied," Trade Minister C. D. Howe said Tuesday night.

The demand will be placed before the pact at negotiations opening January 12 in Washington to renew the four-year agreement that ends next July 31.

Howe, in a speech to the Junior Investment Dealers' Association of Canada, did not detail Canada's demands. The current agreement calls for a ceiling of $1.80 a bushel (U.S.), a floor of $1.30 this year and $1.20 next year.

An indication of the strong stand Canada will take was seen in Howe's statement that Canada hopes for a renewal of the agreement but Canadian participation "can by no means be taken for granted."

The trade minister told the junior investment dealers that he decided to speak to them on the wheat agreement because he considered grain the mainstay of the Canadian economy and he estimated that this year's prairie grain crop might be worth $1,800,000,000.

He defended the policy of the government marketing western grain and said that in no other

Coronation TV Ban Embroiled In Politics

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP)—The ban on televising the coronation next June 2 boiled up Tuesday night into a hot political stew.

Seventy-nine Labor members of Parliament headed by former defense minister Emanuel Shinwell introduced a motion on the subject. It criticized Prime Minister Winston Churchill for refusing to tell the House of Commons of the Conservative government's attitude on the ban.

Since the present session ends Thursday, it seems unlikely the motion would be debated.

Opponents of the ban contend millions of Britons have the same right as the people to see Elizabeth crowned in Westminster Abbey. Those supporting the ban say the televising would place an added strain on the Queen and would detract from the dignity and religious character of the event.

Films will be taken, but it is planned to edit these to remove any possible hitches in the complicated proceedings.

Actually, Churchill has no primary responsibility in this matter. The decision rests with the coronation commission headed by the Duke of Norfolk.

Oldest Pioneer In Sask. Passes

ARCOLA, Sask., Oct. 29 (BUP)—Funeral services will be held in Arcola today for the oldest pioneer in Saskatchewan, 104-year-old Mrs. Lovina Beggs, who died Sunday.

She moved west after her marriage in 1878 and settled with her husband at Arcola after surviving a train wreck and a Red River flood, both of which took toll of their possessions.

Mrs. Beggs was the first white woman at Arcola. They arrived there by ox wagon and started homesteading two miles east of the present site of the town.

FORMER WAR LORDS HEAD NEW JAPAN

Premier Yoshida Supports Allies

TOKYO, Oct. 29 (AP)—Premier Shigeru Yoshida today formed the first Japanese cabinet since the end of the occupation and named to it eight men who had been banned from public life by the Allied powers for ultra-nationalist wartime records.

The pro-west premier brought nine new faces into the 16-member cabinet, his fourth since the war ended.

Tadaharu Mukai, 68, veteran industrialist and former leader of Japan's pre-war Zaibatsu industrial cartel, was named finance minister. He was on the Allied purge list.

Three members of the old cabinet were reappointed—Foreign Minister Katsuo Okazaki, State Minister Hideo Onogi and Education Minister Kiyoshiro Okano. Anti-administration party and Labor leaders attacked Yoshida's new cabinet as reactionary, "nothing refreshing," and the same old group.

Jotaro Kawakami, chairman of the rightist Socialist party, said the reorganized cabinet apparently would carry on "secret diplomacy for the interests of the United States alone." He pledged a vigorous offensive and predicted the cabinet would be short-lived.

10,000 B.C. Loggers, Fishermen Faced With New Strike Action

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 29 (BUP)—The possibility of strikes by 10,000 workers was raised today as labor unrest spread through portions of British Columbia's two basic industries.

About 5,000 loggers were at odds with lumbermen over a wage dispute while the $8,000,000 coastal herring industry headed into rough water as a result of a price disagreement.

The C.I.O. International Woodworkers of America said it would seek a government-supervised strike vote for its 5,000 interior loggers. Operators rejected a conciliation board recommendation accepted by the union, calling for a 3½-cent an hour wage increase and the I.W.A. said it now would revert to its original demand for 10 cents an hour.

The woodworkers recently voted 90 per cent in favor of strike action should conciliation fail.

The Fisheries Association of British Columbia, just over a 41-day strike by 3,000 salmon fishermen, said in a statement "there will be no herring operation this winter if British Columbia fishing companies cannot meet competitive world prices for oil and meal."

Both the association and the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (U.F.W.) rejected each other's price proposals. The union and association recently settled the seven-week strike over fall chum and salmon run prices. The association suggested $6 per ton for herring, $2.40 per ton less than last year. The union rejected this offer.

MacTavish New Liberal Leader

Ottawa Lawyer Elected President Of National Federation; P.M. Speaks

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (BUP)—Duncan MacTavish, chairman of the Federal District Commission to beautify the capital, was elected president of the National Liberal Federation Tuesday, succeeding the late Senator James Gordon Fogo.

MacTavish, a leading Ottawa lawyer, was expected to resign shortly as head of the F.D.C. and swing into the party post to organize for the next federal election.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent gave a hint that there may be tax reductions in the next federal budget.

The prime minister told the federation that continued high production and a lessening of the war threat would make room for "substantial" tax cuts.

But he added that "it would not be honest to hold out too easy hopes for any too great reductions at this time because of the state of the world at large."

He told the banquet which wound up the council's annual conference that defense, social security and fixed government charges were high, but "all this does not mean there is no hope of lower taxes."

The Liberals Tuesday passed a resolution expressing the belief that benefits to veterans and their dependents should be increased when needed, and called on the government to continue supporting research to improve the agriculture, fisheries and forestry industries.

"The Liberal party recognizes that the obligation to Canada's veterans is a continuing one," the veterans' resolution said. "It believes that benefits to veterans and their dependents should be adjusted as additional needs are felt, and that the highest standard of medical care and hospitalization must be provided to disabled veterans."

Jury Views Cars In Fatal Mishap

Members of the jury sitting on the Peter V. Nelson manslaughter case today walked out of Victoria's Assize Court, under care of sheriff's officers, and were taken to view the two cars involved in the June 30 accident at Belmont and Denman in which Mrs. Frances Boorman received fatal injuries.

Viewing of the autos came as Crown prosecutor Gordon Cameron drew his case to a close. This afternoon, defense counsel T. P. O'Grady was to call witnesses on behalf of the accused Nelson. The case was expected to go to the jury by this evening.

Condensed from CP, AP, and UP Dispatches

DECISION—In Winnipeg Progressive Conservative leader George Drew said Tuesday night that Canada should aim at increasing its own consuming population and should use its resources to create wealth and labor within the country.

He spoke at a party reception in South Winnipeg constituency during a one-week tour of Manitoba.

Mr. Drew said that the United States needed more from Canada than Canada needed from the United States and "our course should be decided in Ottawa and not in Washington."

He said the present government was for those who believed in heavy taxation and inflation. Inflation resulted in the price of exports being marked up in terms of the receiving country's currency.

CRUELTY—In Seattle Judge Henry Clay Agnew decided Tuesday that Algie R. Hendley, 47, couldn't have an annulment for his 1947 Mexican marriage, but he gave him a divorce instead. The judge said he could grant the divorce on basis of Hendley's testimony that Mrs. Hendley had once refused to let him have his false teeth.

That, said the judge, is cruelty.

FIRE—No heavy rainfall appeared in sight today to douse the hundreds of damaging fires burning over forest and brush areas in more than a score of states in the eastern half of the United States.

Some snow flurries and light rain hit parts of the midwest, the east and south, bringing a measure of relief in some areas. Colder weather also spread over the eastern half of the country. Thousands continued fighting the fires.

In West Virginia alone 450 fires have blackened 150,000 acres. In Kentucky nearly 200 fires have swept over some 77,500 acres.

Four inches of snow fell in northern New England. New Hampshire woods were closed Monday because of the fire hazard.

TUBBING—In Atlanta in the interest of the better life, an Emory University medical professor advocates more time for singing in the bath tub.

In an article in the October issue of the university quarterly, Dr. Herbert E. Alden wrote:

"We need more time for reading, relaxing and singing in the bath."

"Present-day bath methods and manners are such as to take us away from the physical and spiritual comforts of the lazy timelessness, restful immersion of our bodies in tubs of warm water."

PRIZE—In The Netherlands the Dutch ambassador to Britain, Dirk Stikker, has been awarded the Wateler peace prize of $5,880 for "his vigorous efforts to develop peaceful co-operation between states promoting their mutual organization," it was announced by the Peace Palace Carnegie Foundation today.

Stikker was chairman of the organization for European Economic Co-operation during his term of office as Dutch foreign minister which ended in September.

Last year the prize was awarded to Jean Monnet, general commissioner for the French government's reconstruction plans and now president of the authority of the European coal and steel pool.

BEATEN—R.C.M.P. in Lillooet issued a pick-up order today for William Tom, 23, following the death of an elderly man at an Indian reserve near Bridge River. The body of 86-year-old Ray Gregorie was found Tuesday badly beaten. An inquest will be held today.

Tom was last seen at noon Tuesday and police believe he may have headed for Burlington, Wash.

Tribe Pledges To Help Clean Out Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 29 (AP).—A mass meeting of Kikuyu tribesmen in the Nyeri district today took a "cleansing oath" to co-operate with British authorities in stamping out the dread Mau Mau Secret Society.

The tribesmen called the meeting of their own volition as a sign of their willingness to fight back against the anti-white society whose members swear an oath to drive the white man from Kenya. The society recruits its members mostly from the Kikuyu tribe.

The Mau Mau has been blamed for 45 murders in recent months. Authorities rounded up eight men suspected of arson on behalf of the secret society in Nyeri today, bringing the two-day trial to 80.

The government ordered a widespread dispersal of troops throughout the Kikuyu reserve to give greater protection to loyal Africans co-operating with the authorities. The government also warned it would close schools if teachers or pupils were suspected of being Mau Mau followers.

CANADIAN BRIDE PROBABLY TOOK HER OWN LIFE

LONDON, Oct. 29 (UP)—A Ministry of Transport inquiry decided today that Mrs. Bonita King, 22, who disappeared from the Cunard liner Ascania while on her honeymoon probably committed suicide.

Mrs. King was traveling with her husband, Robert King, of Edmonton, Alberta. Capt. Andrew McKellar, master of the liner, said Mrs. King had appeared "distracted" when last seen alive.

After Mr. Anscomb

THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY OF British Columbia apparently has ended its long internal feud and is about to reorganize itself under a new leader. It has no hope of an early return to office, it has carried the province in only one election since 1912, but since its beginning in 1903 it has been a large and vital force in public affairs. The question today is whether it can survive against a Social Credit party which is basically a rebellion within its own ranks.

The retirement of Mr. Herbert Anscomb is the first step in the party's reorganization. For all his abilities in business Mr. Anscomb, like many other businessmen, was not equipped for party leadership. He served the public well, is entitled to its gratitude and will remain a respected citizen of British Columbia. Very wisely, he will soon turn the party over to other hands.

The late Mr. E. C. Carson had been a probable successor. His death was a serious blow to Progressive Conservative aspirations. But the party has to secure not only a new leader and new blood under that leader but also a policy which may command public support.

Mr. Anscomb says that the major policy of the party in the last election—voluntary hospital insurance—was a mistake. In the vague terms used during the election campaign it was obviously a mistake. The public never understood exactly what the Conservatives proposed, if the Conservatives understood themselves. One of the elected Conservatives, Dr. Giovando of Nanaimo, calls his party's policy "crazy." If it was not crazy the public saw in it nothing but an attempt to destroy a universal system of insurance which a majority of British Columbians evidently desire to preserve.

Ironically enough, as Mr. Anscomb says, the Social Credit party came to office, with a small fraction of the popular vote, on a policy of voluntary insurance but after some months of responsibility it seems to have no policy at all. The government denounces compulsion but is afraid to abolish it and no one knows today whether the insurance scheme is to be compulsory or not.

The experience of the election and the fumbling of the government in this issue indicate that any party which hopes for a majority in the next election will have to satisfy the public that hospital insurance will not be wrecked and the hospitals plunged again into their old deficits.

A party of the right there must be in any democratic society but there cannot be two such parties for long. Social Credit and Conservatism in British Columbia are now locked in a life-and-death struggle for that historic position. While this may not be clear for some time yet, only one of them can hope to survive in the end.

Social Credit starts with the advantage of a studied confusion, since it is basically more conservative than Conservatism and yet manages to appear to many voters as a kind of leftist reform movement.

The future of the Conservative party, provincially and federally, will depend upon its willingness to stand by a much simpler and more honest doctrine. The party has declined throughout the nation in recent times because, in the pursuit of short-run gains, it refused to be itself and secured only long-run losses.

The Cost of Ships

RECENTLY A CERTAIN TRANSPORTATION company decided to build a large ship and carefully estimated the cost. It found that the ship could be built in eastern Canada for about half a million dollars less than the price in a west coast shipyard.

If the ship is built no doubt it will be built on the east coast, or possibly at still lower cost in Britain. The company will be quite right in seeking the lowest possible price and the public will benefit in the end, through transportation rates, by this economy. But where does that leave the shipbuilding and also the ship repairing industry of British Columbia?

In the end our shipyards, like all our industries, must meet competitive prices offered elsewhere. Two of our major industries, lumber and fishing, have encountered this uncomfortable but unde-niable fact during the present year. Others will face the same sort of test not long hence.

Our shipbuilding industry will flourish and survive only if it can keep its costs competitive and the shipyard workers will continue to hold their jobs only so long as they produce ships that can be sold. The unions which presently are demanding sharp wage increases will be wise to remember these facts, which are entirely outside the control of the owners or the government, mathematical and inescapable facts governing the whole national economy.

If we want industries and jobs we must meet the demands of the market. If we refuse to meet them and industries languish as a result the victims of this mistake will not be mainly the owners but the workers and the communities which depend upon them.

Closing the Doors to the Press

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA GOVERNMENT Employees' Association, in annual meeting here last week, has established a position in respect to the press which second thoughts may cause it to regret. Delegates, we are informed, threw out a Victoria resolution which asked that the press be allowed to attend local meetings.

The reason given for that action was that admitting reporters to meetings of the 42 local groups in B.C. would result in 42 "voices" for the association throughout the province. So many "voices," it was felt, could lead to conflict in policy.

If the British Columbia Government Employees' Association is a democratic organization—and there appears to be no reason why it shouldn't be—why should it be concerned over the prospect of 42 "voices"? The genius of a democratic system lies not merely in its acceptance of the principle of majority rule, but of the equally important principle of protecting the rights of minorities and permitting expression of dissenting views.

Presumably the association, whose members are familiar by virtue of their occupations in the government service with the practice of democratic bodies, would be among the first to protest against any move to muzzle the press. What is the association doing other than that when it restricts reports on its deliberations to official handouts?

As long as the different groups in the association discuss matters of general public interest, is there any reason why their discussions should not be aired, uncensored, through the medium of a newspaper report produced by an unbiased reporter?

Time to Look to Our Sewers

WHETHER OR NOT FAULTY sewers on Forshaw Road are responsible for a case of meningitis in this community, the public's attention has been focused on a sanitation problem which calls for immediate solution. Residents of that district are emphatic in their demands for improvement. And while the issue is claiming wide interest a general survey of the entire Greater Victoria area might well be presented to the citizens.

Earlier this year, when eviction procedure was considered for Lime Bay squatters, the point was made that lack of sewer facilities there created a health menace. The argument drew a query from other sources over the adequacy of other sewer arrangements for passenger ships in the harbor and waterside industrial and commercial premises.

Years ago, when Victoria applied pressure to Saanich in a move to force improvement in sewer arrangements in that municipality, the pressure was relaxed when unsatisfactory conditions in the city were brought to Victoria's notice.

Saanich admits its deficiencies in sewer service and is attempting to rectify conditions. The problem is no stranger to Oak Bay's engineering department.

Urban congestion places new emphasis on the issue. The public should be informed of conditions as they exist in each municipality. When the facts are known, the people of this community may be expected to insist that faults be corrected. They will have to pay for the work through taxes, but they appreciate the need to eliminate dangers to health caused by inadequate sewer systems.

Bigger, and We Hope, Better

FOR TAXPAYERS WHO MAY have doubted the necessity for the Greater Victoria school building program, the figures released last week by the school board provide a pointed answer.

Enrollment in the schools of the district this year is 900 more than the annual average, with 12,937 pupils registered in grade and high school classes. This total is 838 more than last September, 1,169 more than last June. Nine hundred students represent a need for some 30 classrooms, and these would be required at various points throughout the city rather than in one building. That means several school buildings, if the children are to receive adequate training in proper accommodation, and taxes to provide the funds. This is a growing city, and it cannot escape growing pains.

Chips

By DAVE BROCK

THERE was a broken old dinghy lying around in the children's part of our garden. There still is, but she doesn't look much like a dinghy at the moment, for the children have built a fantastic superstructure on her. They have also tied or nailed onto her any old junk they could find, ranging from a brass toaster-fork to a collapsible baby carriage, and including at least 200 Guinness bottles. They found in the woods near here. The vessel isn't readily identified as a space-ship (to those of us who get our ideas of space-ships from popular fiction). Nevertheless, the kids claim that's what she is. The other day one of their chums saw the craft for the first time since her reincarnation as a space-ship, and he gazed at her with a puzzled horror. "What's THAT?" he asked. . . . It seemed to him a reasonable question. The skipper didn't quite like the tone of the question, though, and he answered vaguely: "Oh, it's just an old crate. But it still goes."

"Goes?" said the visitor, more startled than ever; "goes where?" "Mars," said the skipper simply.

SO NOW YOU KNOW

Talking of space-ships, and all such things spacious and specious, did you hear that series of talks on the flying saucers which ended about a month ago? The talks ended then. . . . The saucers didn't. The talks were broadcast by an enthusiast in Vancouver (I think) every Wednesday night on the C.B.C. Wednesday night on the C.B.C. is, or used to be, reserved for something rather special. And these talks were certainly special, whatever else they were. Never heard the like, in any scientific way, though I've heard something in the same tone from spiritualists, religious prophets and real estate salesmen. Suppositions based upon suppositions based upon suppositions, followed by a therefore.

The speaker was rather impatient with mockers. He permitted himself a sarcastic tone in dealing with them, but would stand no sarcasm from them. This attitude is quite common with prophets. . . . strictly one-way stuff. In the old days, prophets got stoned to death for just that. But we aren't allowed to end an argument in this fashion today. Though, of course, it works the other way too. . . . prophets are no longer allowed to whistle up obedient bears to eat us when we say "Go up, thou bald head." And yet maybe it doesn't work the other way at that, because it simply doesn't occur to us to say "Go up, thou bald head." You've got to look at that.

Anyhow, far be it from me to mock. Most of the time I was charmed to bits. I was peculiarly charmed by the final lecture, or revelation. The speaker felt the other-worldly visitors in the flying saucers, etc., couldn't come from Mars. Therefore they probably came from another solar system. Since the nearest sun apart from our own is about four light-years away, and since Einstein said that nothing is allowed to travel faster than light even if it wants to, it would take these blokes eight years to reach here and get home again, plus time out for a good look at Los Alamos, Bikini and Mrs. Spinks, a farmer's wife, in Iowa or somewhere.

Eight years is a mighty long time, even to space-travelers who tend to treat time flippantly. So perhaps the saucers get here by some process of thought. (Can thought travel faster than light?) Well, that's all right with me. Let them get here how they like. They'll have to arrange their own transportation, and just so long as they get here, that's the main thing. And as the speaker reminded me, I should be jolly glad to have them here. Because they are benevolent. Yes, sir. They have come to save the world. The world is obviously on its last legs, and unless outsiders turn up as a sort of Space-travelers Aid, we're licked. Therefore that's why they have turned up.

The speaker said these chaps may look very different from us. (I agree.) But to keep from alarming us they will hypnotize us into thinking they look just like ourselves. Similarly, when they start giving us advice on how to run the world in future they will kid us into thinking they are speaking perfect English. I've got a little advice for them myself. . . . if their English is too perfect, it will not only sound affected, but hardly anyone will understand it. They'll have to talk in a vague and woolly way about such things as "the greatest good of the greatest number." And they must be careful to use a lot of fake-scientific terms.

MARKED for READING INCENTIVE GONE

If property, profit, the reward of toil, the fundamental instinct of the human race to gain, to acquire, to have, to reach somewhere, is taken away, then I for one do not feel that we have anything worth fighting for.

—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, 1941.

FIRST ESSENTIAL

The first essential for an editor to-day is an awareness of realities. He sees old civilizations fall and temples to new faiths arise, some of them to collapse in fairly ruin. He is not just a spectator sitting on the bank watching the turbulent flow of the stream of history. He is in the stream, part of it; and he ought to be out in midcurrent seeking to measure its force and if possible to guide it into deep channels.

—Former Oregon Governor Charles A. Sprague in an address at Stanford University.

A PRICELESS ASSET

It would be wrong to think that Canada has prospered and is prospering simply because she is abundantly supplied with raw materials and cheap power. Canada has another priceless asset—good government. Without that good government, this post-war phase of industrial activity could have boiled over into an unhealthy boom. As it is, the Liberal government has been willing to incur a good deal of unpopularity at times in order to prevent the Canadian economy from attempting to do too much.

—Harold Winest, in London Financial Times.

LOSES OUT

Many people were made happy by the news of the money "earned" while in prison camp during the war, but I feel an injustice is being done.

A young married couple, in Victoria since a year ago, are from Scotland. He was a soldier and made prisoner for three and a half years. We think he, too, earned his dollar a day for those years out of his life. The law says he is not a Canadian. Scotland says he lost everything because he made his home here last year. There are many cases like his. Injustice is what I call it!

SAANICH SEWERS

After reading in the paper about what Reeve Casey said at a Saanich Council meeting about Saanich taxpayers' money being wasted, well it sure is. But not the way Mr. Casey says it is.

Take the connection from the sewer to your lot line, a few feet which would not cost more than $25 at the outside. I happen to know that. Why are we charged $70 for that and if not paid in December we have to pay a fine on that with interest, like we have to do on our taxes. No provision made for people on old age pensions or pension below that.

I think Saanich people should know more about the superintendent Saanich pays. The Saanich people want to fire him. They cannot do that as this man has given notice himself already. Indeed has threatened to many times before because his hands are tied. He has 40 years' experience and he was a valuable man to Saanich. Ask any of his men he works with, they will tell you the same. They all say he knows his work. He must do or he would not now be working on the tunnel at Fillicum Road. A very important job for the sewer work.

HOSTEL

Apparently the mayor and several aldermen are puzzling their brains, wondering how they can make accommodation for the army, navy and air force personnel located in and around Victoria.

Might I offer the suggestion of taking over the Army and Navy Club on Wharf Street for a period of two, three or five years. Making arrangements for the present members to be transferred (temporarily) to the Britannia Branch, the Pre Fats, Naval Veterans and the Veterans of France for the length of time the Army and Navy building is occupied by the personnel of Her Majesty's forces.

SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

Referring to Mr. Fyfe's letter (25th inst.) re immoral literature: The Bible needs no defense from me, it speaks for itself; but perhaps it would be as well to remind Mr. Fyfe that there are two kinds of science.

One is true knowledge, and agrees with the Bible 100 per cent; the other is "science" falsely so called, which St. Paul couples with "profane and vain babblings," and needs no consideration from anyone, other than to heed St. Paul's warning to "beware" of it. Mr. Fyfe might well study the Bible and true science together, for a salutary change in his viewpoint.

Arts Centre Controversy

May I suggest, in reply to the question of the curator of the Victoria Art Centre, why people are still to be found to accept jury duty, that there is no mystery at all, but may be found in the old adage that "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

Advance publication of the names of the three jurors might have obliterated the now very apparent dissatisfaction expressed in the numerous letters in the press. It would have given the general public and potential exhibitors the opportunity to judge in advance how "expertly" their works would be screened.

The resultant exhibition finally hung, finds me on the side of the curator, when he suggested that the jurors should have been secretly ushered through the back door and onto a fast plane, and preferably with a one-way ticket, to Timbuctoo perhaps?

I am also quite in accord with the expressed opinion that civic financial support to the centre be withheld, until such time that the public may be assured that the centre will not be used as a repository of ultra modernistic doubts, to the exclusion of the works of artists of the traditional outlook, which after all, greatly outnumber the followers of the so-called fashionable trend. This unfortunate bent on the part of the directorate is however too apparent, as a visit to the centre will show.

Its culmination was the acquisition of an abomination, called "Ten Mile Point." It is to be hoped that this "prize" did not involve any waste of the centre's meagre finances, and only on the premise that "one should not look a gift horse in the mouth" that a space amongst other really fine works of art might be tolerated.

I also suggest that its title be, for obvious reasons, changed. "Fuller Brush Man's Dream" should well fit it.

Lastly, I hope that by now it should be quite obvious to the curator, that the hanging of pictures of one of the jurors definitely carried the aroma of "cheap publicity."

It is my firm belief that as an art teacher my expressed opinion will carry the same conviction with my earnest colleagues and their pupils.

A Day With A Candidate

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE day that is the subject of this report took Adlai E. Stevenson from Niagara Falls to Albany, through the autumnal splendor of the northern New York countryside. The landscape was a blazing glory. In the cosy small towns burning leaves scented the bright air in the squares around the Civil War memorials. Even the dingy industrial cities were happily illuminated by the cool brilliance of the October sun.

Stevenson began his day with breakfast on a tray in his bleak compartment, and a speech studied with small jokes.

ingly good jokes concerning the circumstances) to a crowd of about a thousand people at Niagara Falls at 7:15 a.m.

He made 14 major and minor appearances during the day—general back platform talks at the little towns like Seneca Falls and Canandaigua; a serious and admirably delivered address on the United Nations at Rochester; a major campaign address, nationally televised and broadcast, at Troy, for the wind-up of the day's work.

Between speeches, he received rather more than 30 deputations; for each town could be counted on to produce at least two. Departing from his usual practice of eating alone and working on speech drafts between forkfuls, he gave lunch to an editor who had switched from Eisenhower to Stevenson, and he asked Mayor Erastus Corning of Albany to dinner.

Before the day ended, he did his stuff as a private personality, so to speak, for several hundred people, and displayed his public personality to perhaps 40,000 in all.

Meanwhile, from breakfast time until long after the Troy meeting, Stevenson also toiled at the job that has taken most of his time in this campaign. Unlike Dwight D. Eisenhower, unlike Harry S. Truman and Franklin Roosevelt, Stevenson cannot and will not deliver a speech that is not really his own.

He has three angry competitive nests of first-class speech writers in Springfield. He has a team on the train, headed by Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., but his speeches are still planned, often drafted and always thoroughly redrafted by Stevenson himself.

INDEPENDENT

There are other ways in which he is obstinately independent, and other extra burdens he must carry. Eisenhower for example now placidly permits the television make-up men to cover him with pancake until, for some appearances, he has the complexion of a pink kewpie doll. But Stevenson grimly fights them off, permitting only the lightest application of powder to his high bald forehead. Again Gen. Eisenhower can always count on meetings that have the showiness and snap of a Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn production, which they generally are. There are huge squads of Republican advance men to get out the crowds, programs of entertainment, including B.B.D. and O. cheerleaders.

From start to finish a special B.B.D. and O. man works to keep the Eisenhower meetings moving well, actually wandering about the stage in the manner of the theoretically invisible stage hands in Chinese opera.

Stevenson can count on none of this. There were a few empty seats at the big Troy meeting. The amplifying system was faulty. The program was haphazard. Yet the candidate seemed perfectly undisturbed. He received an obviously affectionate ovation.

Near the end of his speech he quoted Woodrow Wilson—"I would rather fail in a cause which will ultimately triumph than triumph in a cause which will ultimately fail."

One wondered, for a moment, whether this was his election prediction; although those close to him say that he simply does not think or speculate about the election outcome.

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TORIN

"THEY say," said the Elevator Man, "that two dozen witnesses of an accident will give two dozen versions of what happened. And the more or less true. We all see something different in what goes on around us. If someone is knocked down on the street, for instance, a doctor passing by would be most concerned with possible injuries. That's what he would notice first.

But a tailor might be attracted most by the way the person's coat was ripped. A mother might think of the victim's family. A businessman might wonder if insurance was involved. All these angles of thought would color their descriptions afterwards. It's a fact we apply our own standards of measurement to everything, with frequently resulting confusion. It's as though everybody announced his own preference for the length of a foot-rule and did all his measuring with it. We depend on rule of thumb, and only our own thumb will do. Lower main!

"This," said the Elevator Man, "often leads to queer results. So you have two people in a room, one insisting it's too hot and another saying it's too cold. They're both right, for themselves, but neither one bothers to find out the real temperature. Same on a bus. One wants the window open, another wants it shut. There isn't much difference between a squabble like that and one that involves bigger issues—whether a city shall be residential or industrial, whether stores shall close on Wednesdays, whether the government shall be one party or another, whether we shall have peace or war. We all have our own measurement, and sometimes it becomes more important to us than the truth. Going up!

"Judging," said the Elevator Man, "everything from a personal standpoint like that makes it hard to stay in perspective. Take that visitor playing a new golf course for the first time. He took a cut at the ball and missed it completely. 'I'm glad I learned one thing right off,' he muttered. 'This course is at least two inches lower than the one I've been playing on at home.'"

THE 'PREMIER' GOES TO PRISON

Austrian Villagers Hoaxed Into 'World-Wide State'

LINZ, Austria, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—The self-styled "premier" of "Nauretna" now is in prison garb.

Officials said here today that Robert Kreissl, who hoodwinked citizens of the nearby village of Leonding into believing they were members of a new "world state," has been jailed for 14 months for fraud and forming a secret organization.

Kreissl, a Czech refugee, set himself up as dictator of the imaginary community and forced "citizens" to pay heavy taxes.

Police caught up with him when he sentenced two "citizens" to death for not paying taxes. A girl friend of one of the condemned men told police.

The fraud was complete with silken robe ceremonials, cabinet meetings and passports.

RUSSIA'S TOMMY MANVILLE

Playboy Lives Well Despite Heavy Alimony

MOSCOW, Oct. 28 (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia explained today how Vasily Kutryumov—marrying playboy of the Kuznetsk basin—could pay out half his salary in alimony and still live mighty well.

"Embezzlement and theft" did it, said Izvestia.

The disclosures were the latest in a series of exposes of scandalous behaviour that have been appearing in the Moscow press since high Communist officials ordered a clean-up of officials found using their positions to better themselves.

The story about Kutryumov said he had been found short-weighting and overcharging in his restaurant. The paper recommended criminal prosecution.

The newspaper said Kutryumov, head of the finance department of the city of Topki in Kuzbass, central Siberia, spent most of his time in the marriage registration office.

In 1938 he wed Shura. In 1940 he divorced her and married Marysa, lived with her five months and left her.

He fell in love with citizenship "Y" but soon became disappointed with her and walked out. He then married citizenship "P" but divorced her when she refused to bring home money from the bank in which she worked as a cashier. Finally he settled on Vera. But having become a public scandal, he lost his job and left town without a forwarding address in hopes of avoiding alimony payments.

Kutryumov did not fare well outside of Topki, however, so he returned to become director of the restaurant. And although he pays about one-half of his salary for the support of numerous children, he dresses well, has built a home, has bought himself a cow and "in general needs no money."

Scrapped Liner Catches Fire

INVERKEITHING, Scotland, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—The former Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia caught fire today in a yard here where she is being broken up for scrap. A fire brigade fought the outbreak for three hours before it was brought under control. There were no casualties.

Richer Stakes Winner

Cap of Gold Soundly Beaten

NEWMARKET, Eng., Oct. 29 (CP)—Richer, a crack three-year-old chestnut colt, won the 110th running of the Cambridgeshire Stakes today.

Sunny Brae was second and Garrison Hack third in a photo finish.

Richer, a 100-to-6 choice at post time, dashed under the wire in the nine-furlong event two lengths ahead of the pack for the stakes win and the 4,105 sterling (about $11,500) prize.

It was the last of England's autumn racing and on it hinged the hopes of hundreds of people who bought tickets in the fabulous Irish Hospital Sweepstakes.

Sunny Brae was quoted by Greville Baylis, had been the medium of a heavy betting plunge during the last three weeks. He was ridden by jockey Ken Gethin.

Gethin tipped the winner at a dinner in Newmarket Tuesday night by telling the crowd with a grin:

"At 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon I hope we'll all be a little bit richer."

FAVORITES WELL BACK

The 10-to-1 co-favorites, Cap of Gold and Antyridge, finished well back.

Richer was well behind during the early stages of the running, in which Hilltop and Pink Jasper cut out a fast pace on the heavy going.

The eventual winner began to move up at the halfway mark and was nearly even with the leaders three furlongs from home.

Richer shot out of the bunch with two furlongs to go and easily held off the fast-finishing Sunny Brae.

If Findler Coach, Royals Don't Know It

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 29 (BUP)—Aubrey Sanford, manager of the New Westminster Royals soccer club, said Tuesday he had no knowledge of reports that Bill Findler would take over coaching chores of the club from resigning Jack Coulter.

Sanford said: "It's all news to me. The club is going fine and there is a great deal of harmony among the team now."

Findler was mooted, in press reports, to be in line for the spot following the resignation of Coulter after differences with club officials.

Ivan Carr was named temporary coach by the club executive. Findler, well known in coast soccer circles, coached the Canadian champion St. Andrew's in 1948 and was Coast League secretary for two and one-half years.

Richard Could Equal Scoring Mark Tonight

It's Maurice (Rocket) Richard against Toronto Maple Leafs tonight.

The fiery Montreal centre will aim at one or both of the two goals needed to give him a tie for the all-time scoring record of the National Hockey League.

Hurling Richard will be shooting for Nels (Old Poison) Stewart's lifetime mark of 324 goals when the two clubs square away in their first encounter of the young N.H.L. season.

There's a good chance that the quirk of hockey play will enable the piece de resistance—his passing of that mark—to bob up before his wildly partisan followers in Montreal Saturday when the Canadiens meet New York Rangers.

There's a bad omen for the Leafs—the Rocket is hot. He's fired three goals in the last two games. His blazing shots have done much to power Canadiens to their present league leadership.

Stewart set his mark during

TIME OUT! By Jeff Keale

When Calgary took the Eskimos by a 19-point margin last Wednesday night I set myself for the ribbing that was bound to come. That it came in quantity is another story.

But what matters is that I mentally counted the Eskis of Frank Filchok out of the running.

Therefore, I can now claim little moral comfort in the fact that the great Eskimos aggregation rose to the challenge, overcame that "unbeatable" 19-point lead in the second game and went on to win.

Rather I would talk to you today about the unbelievable fact that football has taken upon eastern Canada; the "amateur" professionals; as well as touch briefly on a city which, up until five years ago, didn't even have a team in the league.

Edmonton has a population of 173,075 (for comparison greater Victoria's population registers 104,303).

Saturday night the weather was cold (32) with winds gusting up to 24 m.p.h. The home team was down 19 points before the game even got under way.

And yet the stands which had been built to hold a capacity of approximately 13,000 (highest capacity in the Western Conference) had to be enlarged to hold an all-time conference record approaching 16,000.

Surely a town that turns out to back a "beaten" team deserves to witness a "miracle" for its money... possibly as much as $200,000 to $300,000.

And speaking about money... There are some of my pals here in Victoria who aren't too happy about eastern football. They talk scathingly about the

Rugged Ruggers Gird for Wars

Hoping to bring the prized McKee Cup to Victoria next year, a contingent of candidates for the Crimson Tide rep team had their first workout Tuesday night at Macdonald Park. The players were put through their paces under the watchful eye of coach Derek Hyde-Lay on a soggy field and in a dense fog, but enthusiasm was at a high level. Three of the veterans who will strengthen the club were caught here indulging in a bit of horse play. Albie Williams pounces on a loose ball while Harry Turner, left, and Jim Mill make ready to pounce on Williams.

FOOTBALL CLINIC

Teachers' Turn to Attend Class

The teachers will be going to school starting Thursday night.

George Kulai, director of the Victoria chapter of the Dominion Football Association's soccer coaching school has called the first class for coaches who are interested in coaching the droves of youngsters who attend Saturday's instruction classes.

All prospective coaches will be given a thorough ground-work in soccer tactics and rules and will be taught the most effective methods to pass the information along to the youngsters. First meeting of the new school will be held in St. Louis College Thursday night at 8.

Kulai and Ed Ball will be in charge of the field coaching while referee Les Isaacson will handle rule interpretations.

School officials hope that anyone with some soccer experience will turn out to help as the situation at the youngsters' classes is getting out of hand.

Carl Coates, publicity man for the school, said this week that about 250 boys are turning out every Saturday at four parks, and the coaches are required to handle from 25 to 50 of the youngsters. They feel that more coaches would result in more individual attention to the students.

Over 100 boys turned out the first time the Windsor Park school was opened.

Esquimalt Gym Secured By City Basketbailers

Round one of the fight to win back basketball fans has been won by the Victoria and District Basketball Association.

Frank Ireland, association vice-president, announced this morning that the new Esquimalt High School gymnasium would be used for Wednesday and Saturday night games for the remainder of the season.

The gym will get its first public test Saturday night in a double senior A bill. Victoria senior A men's Kins will meet Vancouver Clover Leafs and King Realty, senior A women, will take on defending Canadian champion Vancouver Elfers.

The gym has a seating capacity of 500 and Ireland hopes to increase this figure to 1,000 by the addition of auxiliary seats.

The move is hoped to bring back fans who have lost interest in basketball because of the uncomfortable facilities at Victoria High School which has insufficient seats for large crowds, forcing many ticket buyers to stand for games. Vic High will still be used for some minor games and for team practices.

Use of the Esquimalt facilities are the result of negotiations between the V.D.B.A. and the school board.

HIGH-SCORING UNIT

Leafs are coached by Ron Weber and boast a fast, high-scoring team. They play a fast-breaking style and have scored 80 points in one game this season.

Among the scoring stars on the club are Jeff Craig, Leo and Maurice Mulhern, Jack McKinnon and Jim Ireland, a Victorian now living in Vancouver. It is not yet known how many of the regulars will make Saturday's trip.

Canadians, Elks Easy Victors

Vernon Canadians and Kamloops Elks fired goals in long, uninterrupted strings Tuesday night to take easy wins in the Okanagan Senior Amateur Hockey League.

Canadians defeated Kelowna Packers 7-4 at Vernon and Elks drubbed the league-leading Penitence V's 7-1 at Kamloops to take a firmer hold on second place.

CRYSTAL GARDEN WATERS TAKE CHURNING TONIGHT

Three hundred swimmers will take to the water tonight in the annual Inter-High School Swimming Gala at the Crystal Garden at 7:30.

Oak Bay High School will be defending the Beatty Trophy and senior aggregate title. Either Oak Bay or Victoria High has won the trophy since it was put up for competition in 1945.

Both schools have entered strong teams and will be favored, although smaller schools are not to be counted out of the running.

HEADED FOR SASKATOON?

Big Chuck May Have Lost Job to 'Gump'

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (CP)—Chuck Rayner, veteran New York Rangers goaltender, may be headed for a job in the Rangers farm system, general manager Frank Boucher hinted today.

Rayner, who has been out of action with a leg injury since late last season, apparently has lost the New York goaltending job to Lorne "Gump" Worsley.

Biologist To Address Game Club

B.C. game department biologist, Don Robinson, will be the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association Monday at the Gold stream Clubhouse.

Subject of Robinson's address will be "Deer on Vancouver Island." He will also answer questions on the blue grouse situation. Non-members as well as members may attend. Meeting time is 8 p.m.

It was also announced that the club will hold a dance at the clubhouse on Saturday, Nov. 8, at which time membership awards will be presented.

Hold That Towel, Irwin on His Way

Cougars Get Defenseman From Habs

Vancouver 5, Victoria 3

By BILL WALKER

VANCOUVER—Oops! ...

Hold that crying towel, mother. The Cougars may have lost another, but the tear has lost its sting.

Club general manager Fred Hutchinson today announced that defenseman Ivan Irwin is en route from the Montreal Canadiens to Victoria.

"Irwin will report to the club Friday night," Hutchinson said the telegram announcing Irwin's acquisition stated.

Hutchinson earlier in the year said that Irwin would prove a popular bashing style of rear-guard.

Irwin's hockey history is dominated by his penalty totals, which overshadow his point totals. His last three professional hockey seasons were spent with Cincinnati Mollawks of the American Hockey League.

In the 1949-50 season he scored two goals and seven assists in 52 games and racked up 114 minutes in the penalty box. The following season he played 62 games, scored three goals and 14 assists and drew a lengthy 145 minutes penalty. Last year he appeared in 67 games, picked up four goals and 10 assists and 111 minutes in penalties.

He has been with Montreal this year.

Defenseman Leon Bouchard leaves today to join Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

FOURTH STRAIGHT LOSS

That "another," the Cougars lost was a 5-3 decision to the Canucks Tuesday night, their fourth straight defeat in Western Hockey League play.

"The Canucks' their forwards playing as if their jobs depended on it (a previous press report said that some of them were) made two first-period goals stand up in their fifth game without defeat."

Victory vaulted Canucks into a two-point lead over Saskatoon Quakers who stood still in dropping a 5-1 verdict to the touring New Westminster Royals.

Entering the game without the services of their leading shock troops, Stan Long and Don Webster, the Cougars ran out of "go" for the first time just past the halfway mark of the first period, a pattern they were to follow in each succeeding period.

Red Powers slapped in his own rebound at 15:49 and the Canucks were off and winging.

POINT-A-GAME

Lam Mackintosh, the league's leading scorer, maintained his point-a-game average less than two minutes later when he poked Larry Popelin's rebound past an overworked but always able Jerry Cote.

Former Cougar Walt Atanas, who was to prove a thorn in the Cougars side all evening, beat three men at centre ice in making Popelin's original close-in shot possible.

Cougars opened the second period with renewed vigor and fittingly enough it was Doug Anderson who fired them back into the game. Anderson had two tries before beating Emil Francis at 3:16.

In the interim between Anderson's goal and Atanas' first of two goals at 12:32, which shot the Canucks ahead, 3-1, Coteiro was a spectacular figure in the Victoria net, despite getting a high stick in the eye from a pile-up in the goal crease. The injury was not serious.

KILBURN CONNECTS

Again it was the Edmonton gold-dust combination, Kilburn and Anderson, who combined for the Cougars' second goal, Kilburn batting in a bouncing puck over the diving form of Francis at 15:38.

Just when it appeared that the Cougars may be on the way back against their more forceful opponents, big Harry Dick parked himself in front of Coteiro and deflected Powers' pass into the net to give the Canucks a 4-2 margin before the period's end.

Atanas with a terrific burst of speed climaxed by a shoulder high shot from right wing, blasted the puck under Coteiro's left arm to give the Canucks their final goal early in the final frame.

A penalty to Powers set the stage for a determined Cougar offensive which paid off in the prettiest goal of the night. A three-way passing play from Strongman and McIntyre to Dorohoy saw Francis well beaten at 5:39, but the Canucks played it cosy from there in and the Cougars fell in with the plot.

Thanks for keeping the score within bounds when the Canucks started to roll, which they did intermittently but commandingly so, must go to Coteiro, who was brilliant in defeat.

The best line on the ice was the Anderson-Fairburn-Kilburn trio. Coach Ed Dorohoy was his usual dynamic self, though nothing comparable could be said about his wings.

Flori, Gogean, in his first full game on the backline, was blocking well and may have at least provided one answer to the defense problem.

Congratulations to Navy on its impressive victory over Royal Roads Saturday. The Naden crew can't be counted out yet—not by a long shot.

P.S. Oh, yes—Bombers to take the great Edmonton squad, two games to one.

Baseball May Curtail Heavy Bonus Payments

BY RALPH RODEN
NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—Payment of fancy $100,000 bonuses to untied youngsters to sign with major league baseball clubs may be sharply curtailed in 1953.

Major and minor league clubs, at their joint December meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., will be asked to vote on a proposed new bonus rule that would restrict such payments to $6,000 "tops."

The new proposal follows the shelling out of vast sums by major league clubs on green talent during the last several years. In the last 18 months, for instance, Boston Red Sox spent some $430,000 for high school and college stars.

The new proposal was drawn up Tuesday by a special recommendation committee of the game's major-minor executive council.

It provides:
1. Each major league club owner would agree—in a sort of "gentlemen's agreement"—not to offer a bonus exceeding $6,000.

2. Violation of this agreement would subject the transgressor to a year's suspension, a $500 fine and loss of the player.

3. Minor league clubs would enter into a similar agreement with $6,000 the ceiling for open classification, triple and double A loops, $4,000 for double A and $3,000 for B, C and D organizations.

4. All bonus players, regardless of the amount they received, would be subject to unrestricted draft if not called up to their major league club within one year.

5. Clubs would be forbidden to make special payments to parents, friends, relatives or agents in forms of cash, homes or automobiles.

Hockey Thespians Drip With Drama

By DENNY BOYD

So you think all the comedians, dramatists and tragedians have been corralled by television do you?

Well, it is obvious that you haven't been near the penalty boxes on a normal Commercial Hockey League night at Memorial Arena.

As a matter of fact some aspiring producer could form a fair stock company, employing some of the drama that is exuded around the timekeeper's table every time referee Leo Ornest blows his whistle, points to a player and gestures with his thumb in the direction of the cooler.

Ornest himself rates as a better than fair thespian. There is a world of color in the indignant manner he charges a player with boarding, as if Ornest himself had been the victim. While the accused beats his breast and pleads for justice, Ornest stands at centre ice, arms folded aloofly and stares ceilingward.

But to the real performers—the players themselves.

They can almost be categorized like bit players in a Hollywood studio.

The most prominent is The Crucified Saint. This individual will skate into a corner, jab his elbow into an opponent's ear, trip him with his stick and "accidentally" fall on his felled victim's head.

When a penalty is charged, he flies into a purple funk of wrath, hopping with rage, breaking his stick and kicking the boards. In the penalty box he mutters vulgar stories about the referee's ancestors and personal life.

Veiling with the above type for attention is The Weeper, who takes an entirely different approach. When he is penalized he looks at the referee in shocked disbelief and says in a voice choked with emotion, "You... mean... me?"

The tears that well from his eyes and his heartbreaking pleas would soften any heart but that of a referee.

To this player, a penalty is regarded as the foulest crime and the greatest shame on earth. He hates himself but it's funny how he goes on, game to game, getting penalties and hating himself.

Equally hard to stomach is The Showboat. When he gets a penalty he skates over to his bench to inform his mates that they will have to do as best they can without him. He then takes a slow tour around the rink, forehead wrinkled thoughtfully.

Standing at the penalty gate he throws his stick and gloves in, hops over the gate and spits noisily on the floor. Disdaining the seat provided he perches himself atop the side of the box so that he can see the crowd and, what's more important, the crowd can see him.

The Alibier is a transparent type; a blind man could see through him. His penalty box conversation goes like this: "No, I didn't slash him. There was a little piece of paper on the ice and I swung my stick around to get it out of the way and this clown sticks his head right in the way. I'm trying to save someone's life and I get a penalty."

Despair of the timekeeper is The Clock-Watcher. From the time he enters the penalty box until the time he leaves, he is on hot bricks, fearing he will serve a second too long. Ten seconds after sitting down, he is breathing hoarsely down the timekeeper's peck, demanding, "Hey, Mac, how much time left?"

Another microscopic portion of his penalty passes and he is quivering with anxiety. "It must be up. The clock's wrong. Call the referee." No more than 10 seconds later he is enquiring, "Hey, Mac, how many jewels in that watch you're using?"

The one individual who helps game officials retain their reason is The Philosopher. He skates dutifully to the penalty box, winks at the referee and says, "You got me dead to rights."

He wishes a hearty good evening to the timekeeper, scorer and press section, smiles wryly and says, "Guess I shouldn't have done that but the rest will do me good."

Why aren't there more like him?

W.H.L. CUFF NOTES

League Attendance Up

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 29 (BUP)—Cuff-notes from the Western Hockey League:

Opening game attendance was up slightly from 1951... League president Al Leader said 3,511 more people watched the curtain raisers... Total paid attendance in the eight opening games this season, 32,711; last year, 29,260.

Saskatoon, New Westminster and Vancouver showed increases, Vancouver the largest with 1,671 more fans... Edmonton showed the greatest decline with a drop of 1,317.

The Saskatoon-Calgary game Saturday was the first penalty-free game in the league so far this season... Last season, there were eight such games.

League statistics show goal-scoring is down a few percentage points from last year... In games including last Sunday, there had been 219 goals scored in 34 contests for a 6.44 average... At the same mark last season, the average was 6.61.

Ian Mackintosh of Vancouver not only leads the league in individual scorers, but is the only player to score at least one point in every game he has played so far this season.

Centre Bob Love of the New Westminster Royals has not missed playing a game since the league turned professional in 1948.

George Arner of Calgary and Eddie Doherty of Victoria are the only players in the league wearing sweaters No. 13... They also placed one-two in the league scoring race last season.

Yugoslav Scullers Seek Asylum In Canada

FRANKFURT, Oct. 28 (AP)—Eight members of Yugoslavia's Olympic rowing team who refused to return to Yugoslavia after the Helsinki games said today they are emigrating to Canada.

"We have been promised jobs in Toronto and will sail in a few weeks," said Slavko Jankovic, team manager.

The rowers stopped in Germany to compete in a regatta on the way back from Helsinki and then decided not to return to their Communist homeland.

"Our most important reason for not going back to Yugoslavia is, naturally, political," Jankovic said.

"Also," he added, "we are all young and have our whole lives before us. Life in Yugoslavia is difficult and expensive. Canada is a land where one can work and live in freedom and earn enough to live as an honorable man."

City Soccer Schedule Out

Legion and Heaneys will meet in a Victoria and District Football Association match at Athletic Park Saturday at 2:30.

Legion, highest scoring team in the league, will be out to better their league lead. However, a win for the cartage men would move them into a tie with the blue shirts.

Civil Service will tangle with Victoria West on the same grounds on Sunday.

Kilburn Now Third In Point Race

Vancouver's Ian Mackintosh added to his Western Hockey League scoring lead Tuesday night as he picked up one goal and one assist in Canucks' 5-3 victory over Victoria Cougars.

Teammate Larry Popen had three assists to climb within one point of Mackintosh's 17-point total.

Colin Kilburn of Victoria notched one counter in the same game to boost his point total to 11 and a third place tie.

Supporters of the sure-fire theory were Oak Bay, Mount View and Mount Douglas who demonstrated its effectiveness to Esquimalt, Victoria High Blacks and Victoria High Golds.

Oak Bay's 3-0 conquest of Esquimalt kept the winners one point ahead of Mount View and Mount Douglas who remained tied for second place, Mount View drubbing Blacks 4-0 and Mount Douglas nipping Golds 1-0 for their first victory of the season.

Stan Johnston was the fair-haired boy at Mount Douglas. The home club battled on even terms with Golds until Johnston put them in the win column with a first-half goal. The counter came following a corner kick at the Vic High end, Johnston rushing the ball into the net.

Mount View got off to an early start, Greg Ward punching home a scoring shot to push Golds off balance. Barry Gallant knocked most of Golds' hopes away with two sharp goals in rapid succession near the end of the half.

Larry Alexander made it 4-0 shortly after the resumption of play. Jim Sutton turned in a great game in the Mount View nets to deserve his shutout.

Oak Bay kept its goal untainted and is unscored on in two games this season. John Smith and Russ Shipley scored beautiful first-half goals, Murray Little adding the clincher in the second half.

West German Government Out After State's Communists

BONN, Germany, Oct. 29 (UP)—West Germany's Conservative government, having succeeded in banning the near-Fascist Reichs party, today went after the Communists.

Wednesday parliament will consider government motions to lift the parliamentary immunity of eight of 13 Communist deputies. That would pave the way for government suits charging libel and slander against them.

An earlier government action before the constitutional court (the nation's highest) to outlaw the Communist party as an unconstitutional organization still is pending.

BEVANITES WIN MORE KEY POSTS IN LABOR PARTY

LONDON, Oct. 29 (BUP)—Aneurin Bevan and his left-wing followers have increased their strength on key Labor Party committees dealing with party policy, publicity and international affairs.

The Bevanites were given the committee posts Tuesday after they disbanded their left-wing "party within the party" on orders from the Labor Party leadership.

The national executive elected four Bevanites to the sub-committee on international affairs and three Bevanites to that dealing with policy and publicity. The left-wingers had only two representatives on the old international sub-committee and two on the policy sub-committee.

Montreal Family Buys Skyscraper

DETROIT, Oct. 29 (AP)—The 47-story Penobscot Building, Detroit's tallest skyscraper, has been sold to a Montreal family for about $17,500,000, it was announced Tuesday.

New owners are members of the Webster family, four brothers and a sister. They are the sons and daughter of former Canadian Senator Lorne C. Webster, who died in 1940, leaving large holdings in oil wells, banks, ranches and business firms, including Anis Furs of Detroit.

In the transaction, signed in New York Oct. 6, they acquired the building from the City Investing Co. of New York, which purchased a two-thirds interest last June, and the Social Research Foundation, which was left a one-third interest in the will of the late Dr. Fred T. Murphy.

Gangs Attack U.S. Airmen

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 29 (Reuters)—Leave passes for 4,500 United States Air Force officers and men from nearby Burtonwood were cancelled during the week-end as the result of two mob attacks on airmen in this northern city. A U.S.A.F. spokesman said tonight the attackers were armed with broken bottles and razors. He said he believed the incidents were inspired by Communists, trying to stir up resentment against American air bases in Britain.

N.Y. LEVEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP).—In quiet trading, the stock market today pursued a narrowly-mixed course.

Volume came to about 1,000,000 shares for the day.

There was nothing to inspire the market to great things, and corporate development all were localized in their effect.

American Gas & Electric shot ahead between two and three points after directors declared a regularly quarterly dividend of 75 cents and a 2 1/2 per cent stock dividend, and at the same time they proposed a two-for-one split of the common.

Texas Co. hit a selling pocket and dropped 1 1/2 at 53 1/2 on a block of 2,100 shares. It later recovered from the low.

Canadian issues were mixed. Hiram Walker and Distillers-Sageam each advanced 1/4. Dome Mines gained 1/4, and International Nickel slipped 1/4. Canadian Pacific was unchanged and McIntyre was not quoted.

On the curb, Lake Shore dropped 1/4. Royaltie Oil gained 1/4, and Giant Yellowknife was unchanged.

Toronto Mixed

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (CP).—Mid-afternoon weakness in base metals turned stock market prices mixed today toward the stock market's close. Trading continued listless.

Volume was expected to be about 1,200,000 shares.

Utilities and banks led industrials and papers, foods, steels and miscellaneous issues also gained. Most other groups were mixed but manufacturing companies and textiles slipped.

Senior golds gained as McIntyre added more than $2 while junior producers made little headway in a list of small price changes. Prospects were also mixed with most price changes small except for Conwest which added 15 cents. Holding companies were firm.

Montreal Stronger

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (CP).—The stock exchange and curb market showed a generally better tone in late dealings today.

The pace of business was slow. Gains were in the majority but rarely exceeded 1/4 point. Winnipeg Electric, a strong and active feature yesterday, jumped 1/2 point to 40 1/2.

Senior metals and miscellaneous industrials shared leadership for the advance and were followed by steels, banks, senior oils, beverages, papers and utilities. Carriers were steady.

Atlas, Massey-Harris, Walker, Seagrams, Asbestos Corporation, Dominion Textile, Industrial Acceptance, Abitibi, International Paper, Aluminum, Hudson Bay Mining and International Petroleum made headway.

Mines were heavily traded. Anaconda, Violac Mines and Dominion Asbestos were firm while Ascot, Carnegie and Silver Miller were off. Western oils reflected the higher industrial trend and showed a fair amount of penny gains. Up were Empire Petroleum, Kroy and Okalta.

Vancouver Dull

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29. Noon—Trading slowed to a walk in the early session today and prices were mostly unchanged in metals and oils. Industrials were firmer.

In the mines, Quatsino traded at 54c; Estella 31c; Silver Strand at $1.39, off 1c; Western Uranium $4.60.

In the oils, Canadian Atlantic was up 10 to $4.85; Okalta $2.95; United off 5 at $1.30 and York 34c.

London Slow

LONDON, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—Most of today's stock market activity occurred during the morning. After mid-day, conditions turned quiet with practically no further changes occurring.

Glit-edged issues lost a little ground on the widening of the budget deficit to £718,000,000.

A reiteration of the statement by the managing director of Austin's that the motor industry's future is none too bright, and the fact that the engineers' wage problem still is unsolved led to declines in industrials.

Outstanding movements among foreign bonds happened in Peruvian corporation issues on the news that the moratorium is to be extended for another year—the 6-per-cent debentures lost nearly £10 to £60.

LONDON, Oct. 29 (AP).—Stock closings: Bank of Montreal (ex-dividend), 100 1/2; Canadian Pacific 55 1/2; Dominion 100; Royal Bank 100; Western Union 100; Canadian National 100; Canadian Pacific 55 1/2; Dominion 100; Royal Bank 100; Western Union 100; Canadian National 100.

Big B.C. Gas Project Awaits U.S. Election

By BURKE CAHILL
Times Business Editor

Many industrial interests in British Columbia, as well as in other parts of the world, will be glad to see the end of the hectic U.S. election campaign now approaching the final stage.

The uncertainty among business interests generated by the campaign is believed an important factor in the current jittery state of the stock markets. In turn, this affects the planning of many large industrial projects.

GRAIN

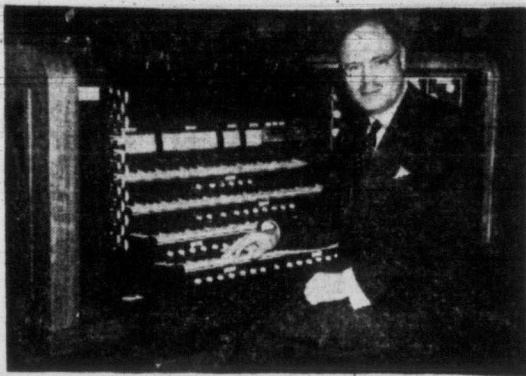

WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Oct. 29 (CP).—Aggressive buying in barley featured today's trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Support was credited to shippers and U.S. interests. Offerings were liberal in the deferred months but negligible in October. Some late buying was believed in anticipation of export business but there was no confirmation. New seasonal highs were posted in October, December and July.

There was moderate shipping support in the deferred months of oats. Industrial and seaboard accounts bought flax. Rye trade was mostly local.

Portland Organist to Play Here

Lauren B. Sykes, internationally-known organist from Portland, Ore., will appear in recital next Monday evening at 8.15, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. He will play on the new Longfield Memorial organ, only recently acquired by the church. The St. Andrew's choir will also participate in the evening's program. Mr. Sykes has been organist and choirmaster of Portland's largest Metropolitan churches, and is a regional chairman of the American Guild of Organists.

M.P. Urges Strikes Be Made Illegal

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (CP) — A Liberal member from Manitoba will ask parliament at the session opening November 20 to investigate the high cost of living and to declare strikes illegal for the next two years.

John Sinnott, member for Springfield, said Tuesday in an interview he will place one bill and six resolutions on the sessional order paper of the Commons.

Mr. Sinnott, who decided to retire from politics after losing the Liberal nomination in a recent party convention in Springfield, said he will present a bill asking repeal of legislation providing pensions of $3,000 a year for long-term members of the Commons.

He said his support of the pensions bill at the last session was responsible for his loss of the nomination in his riding. His supporters believed the taxpayers should not be asked to provide pensions for members of the Commons.

PLAYED BALL

A few weeks ago, Mr. Sinnott said in a letter to Manitoba newspapers that he had supported the pensions legislation because he had to "play ball with the cabinet" in order to obtain public works for his constituency.

Mr. Sinnott said he plans to

Red Guards Block Allied Road Patrol

BERLIN, Oct. 29 (Reuters) — Russian guards today blocked the second Allied attempt in 24 hours to send a patrol along the International Highway linking Berlin with the west. The road has been barred to British and United States patrols since last May.

Today they turned back a U.S. jeep at the Berlin entrance to the Autobahn. Monday they stopped a British jeep making the first attempt since August to penetrate the Soviet road-blocks.

Allied officers in Berlin said today that there would probably be no more attempts to resume patrolling unless the Soviet authorities changed their attitude.

Friend of Farmers, 'Ed' White Retiring

By HUMPHRY DAVY

One of the best known horticulturists in British Columbia, who has seen sweeping changes in the technique and science of farming in the past 40 years, is retiring at the end of the month.

He is E. W. White, supervisor horticulturist for Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands, better known to hundreds of farmers and gardeners as "Ed".

E. W. WHITE

An authority on fruit trees, small fruits, vegetables, bulbs and flowers, Mr. White has acted as judge for hundreds of fairs and exhibitions throughout the province. Perhaps no single man in the Department of Agriculture has been so closely in contact with the growers of British Columbia.

Here in Victoria, Mr. White is better known as a member of the Victoria Horticultural Society, a club expert and a man who has taught hundreds of home gardeners how to prune and take care of their fruit trees.

Son of a well-known B.C. Methodist clergyman, Mr. White graduated from Guelph Agricultural College in Ontario in 1912 and became a member of the Provincial Department of Agriculture in the same year.

Prior to his joining the government, Mr. White was appointed with E. A. Wehr, now a retired C.B.C. executive, to conduct an agricultural survey of Northern British Columbia.

Mr. White took an active part in the battle to control the codling moth and fire blight which seriously threatened the fruit orchards of the province in the first quarter of the century.

The veteran horticulturist has also seen many agricultural changes. He recalls that not so long ago there were many more farms on Vancouver Island and the Island was also known for its large fruit orchards. The orchards have now practically disappeared.

Mr. White is a chartered member of the Agricultural Institute of Canada and the B.C. Institute of Agriologists.

U.S. Casualties Show Big Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 (AP).—The defense department today announced the largest weekly increase in Korean battle casualties in nearly a year—1,278 killed, missing and wounded.

The new total reached 123,395 since the beginning of hostilities.

The rise of 1,278 last week compared with a weekly high of 3,536 announced October 5, 1950, and a low of 123 reported last March 26.

The weekly casualty toll has been comparatively high since early September, reflecting the bitter fighting which has taken place during intensive battles for hill positions along the line in Korea.

Vancouver Studies Six-Day Store Week

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29 (CP).—City council has set up a six-man special committee to study a request from retail food workers that the provincial government be asked to allow food stores to remain open six days a week.

Top Line Act for Rotary Show

Here Tuesday and Wednesday for the big Rotary Club show at the Royal Theatre, "The Tuckerettes" are a top-line flight of trampoline artists. "Fun on the Trampoline" is their act. They produce some brilliant acrobatics, mixed with fast-moving comedy. Rotary's show, billed as "Stars of the Vaudeville Stage," has eight separate, high calibre acts to offer. The artists all are professionals. Tickets are on sale at Fletcher Bros., 1130 Douglas Street.

Jail Probe Learns Of Smuggling Acts

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (BUP).—A royal commission investigating the Sept. 8 escape from the Don jail by the Edwin Alanzo Boyd gang was told Tuesday that men probably smuggled hacksaw blades into the prison by sticking them between the soles of their shoes.

Sheriff J. Conover said it was also possible the blades entered the jail in food carried into the kitchen and handled by short-term prisoners.

He told the commission that Leonard Jackson, sentenced to be hanged Dec. 16 for the murder of sergeant of detectives Edmund Tong here last March, probably took blades into the jail in his artificial foot before the November, 1951 escape. Edwin Boyd and William Jackson also escaped at that time.

After Leonard Jackson was returned here from Montreal where he was arrested last spring, a fluoroscopic examination at the jail disclosed several blades hidden in his artificial foot.

Canover said he had recommended that a fluoroscope be installed at the jail but no decision had yet been made.

Deputy Sheriff R. Y. Cory told of the trouble he had in recommending men for jobs as guards.

"You don't get a five-foot 10-inch man, who should possibly be an expert in judo, intensely interested in his work, and have

Nigel Morgan Re-Elected Head of Labor-Progressives

VANCOUVER, Oct. 29 (CP).—Nigel Morgan was re-elected provincial leader of the Labor-Progressive Party in British Columbia at the party's annual convention here.

During the convention Tim Buck, national leader, said the L.P.P. will run at least 80 candidates in the next federal election. The morals of a missionary at a salary of $2,240 a year. They just don't come," Cory said.

Morgan said 12 of these would be in B.C. and he added the party will have 20 or more candidates in the next provincial election.

CANADIAN EDITOR VISITS RED LANDS

'I Was Not a Communist When I Went Behind Iron Curtain—Less a Red Now,' says Filion

LONDON, Oct. 29 (CP).—Gerard Filion, editor of the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir, made this comment Tuesday night after a five-week visit to Communist China and Russia:

"I can say this: I was not a Communist when I went behind the Iron Curtain, and I am even less a Communist now."

He made the comment in Paris in a telephone interview. On his return to Canada he plans to write a series of articles on his trip.

Without going into details, Filion added that as between Russia and China, his impressions of Russia were "worse."

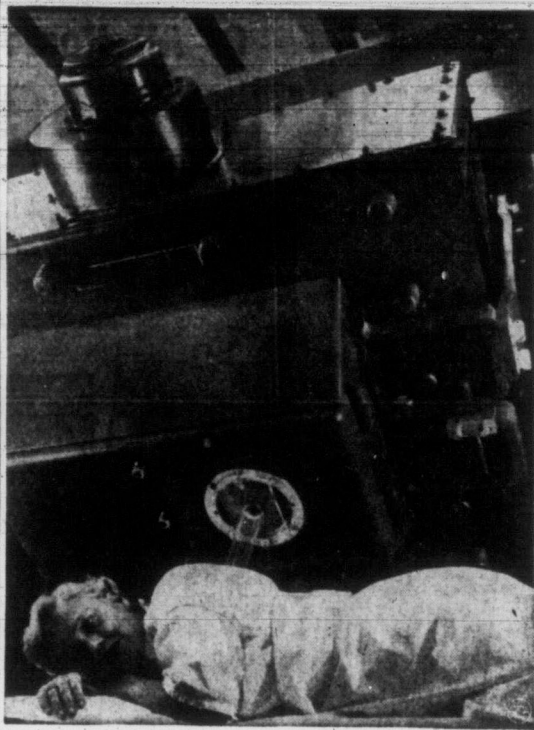

The French-Canadian writer, whose editorials in Le Devoir call forth such adjectives as forthright and hard-hitting, was invited to Peiping to attend a Communist peace conference. He arrived in Prague Sept. 15, spent nearly three weeks at the Peiping conference as one of 40 observers, flew across Siberia and had "four or five" days in Moscow. He stressed that he went to the Peiping conference as an independent observer, with no strings attached.

"I was in no sense a delegate. I made no declaration of any kind while I was there." He declined detailed answers to questions about Communist surveillance in China, saying he could not make any statements without proper qualifications. But he disclosed he had no luck in trying to get in touch with Canadian missionaries in China.

"They (the Chinese) didn't say no but they didn't say yes either," Filion said.

Pressed for general impressions of his visit, he said:

"It has been a great experience; but once in a lifetime is enough. I wouldn't want to go again for a while anyway. But I'm not sorry to have had this great adventure. I don't want to say more than that till I get back to Canada."

Big Gun in Cancer War

One of the newest weapons in the fight against cancer is this 24-million electron-volt betatron, which has been installed at the Memorial Centre for Cancer and Allied Diseases, in New York. The machine, 12 times more powerful than conventional X-ray equipment, will be used for research to determine ways of increasing effectiveness of surgery and of radiation treatment of the disease.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 29 (AP).—The Wesleyan chapter of Delta Upsilon Fraternity voted Tuesday to sever its relations with the national unit when the latter refused to recognize Edgar Beckham, a negro honor student from Hartford. Beckham was taken into the chapter last fall but an "alumni-blackball" blocked full membership.

WILL BE BLIND BY DECEMBER

4-Year-Old Barbara Ann Has Christmas in October

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (BUP).—Christmas came early this year for four-year-old Barbara Ann Burton because her parents wanted her to be able to see her toys.

By the time the "real" Christmas comes, Barbara Ann will be completely blind.

It was either that, or her life.

"When the doctors asked us to make the decision, we didn't think twice," Alfred Burton said. "We want her with us as long as we can have her."

Blonde Barbara Ann's right eye will be removed sometime soon in an attempt to root out a tumor growing behind it. She lost her left eye six months ago in the first attempt to kill the growth.

It was none too soon when Burton brought home the big red rocking horse for Barbara Ann's Christmas-in-October.

"I wanted to play Santa Claus sooner because I knew she was going to be blind."

"She could just see the color red," he said. "But it would do your heart good to see how she enjoys it. Climbs on and says giddyap and away she goes."

The child was brought to Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto from the family home in Kingston only Tuesday when it was decided the right eye would have to be removed too.

Until then doctors had hoped deep X-ray treatment might save it.

The hospital said no date for the operation would be set until she had undergone preliminary X-rays and examinations.

"She knows what's going to happen," Mrs. Burton said. "But she just lies there quietly and never cries."

BEER-BY-PHONE SYSTEM SAVES HENPECKED YANKS IN BRITAIN

HUNSTANTON, Norfolk, England, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—Tavern-keeper Peter Turner reports booming business as the result of his beer-by-telephone service for "henpecked" U.S. Air Force husbands.

Turner promises to deliver beer by the glass or bottle within five minutes of a telephone call to his "hole-in-the-wall" public house. He said he inaugurated the system after U.S. Air Force men and their families moved into the area.

"American wives don't let their husbands slip out for a drink as easily as English wives," he said. "So I thought of this idea."

SEOUL, South Korea, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—The French battalion in Korea Tuesday was awarded a United States presidential citation for its "courageous defense" of Arrowhead Hill, a vital position on the Korean west-central front, October 6-7.

ACTOR ADOPTS GIRL

DALLAS, Oct. 29 (AP).—Cowboy actor Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans, have adopted a tiny Choctaw Indian girl. They named the seven-month-old child "Little Doe." Rogers, who says he is part Choctaw Indian himself, has five other children, three of whom are adopted.

135,296 Immigrants Admitted in 1952

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (CP).—Canada admitted 135,296 immigrants in the first nine months of this year, compared with 129,885 in the corresponding period of 1951.

For the fifth successive month, arrivals in September were lower than the number for the corresponding month of last year. This indicated that by the end of the year fewer immigrants will have been admitted than was the case last year.

In 1951, about 195,000 immigrants came to Canada—the largest number for any year since 1913 when 500,000 were admitted.

In the first nine months of this year, arrivals from Britain totaled 32,781, an increase of 49 per cent over the 21,935 for the corresponding period of 1951.

A total of 6,977 came from the United States compared with 6,015, an increase of 16 per cent. From North Europe there were 54,129 compared with 45,834, an increase of 18 per cent.

From other countries there were 41,409 compared with 36,101, a drop of 26 per cent.

Ontario took the bulk of the immigrants—70,931.

The number taken by other provinces:

Newfoundland, 375; Nova Scotia, 2,246; New Brunswick, 802; Prince Edward Island, 276; Quebec, 28,874; Manitoba, 3,681; Saskatchewan, 3,216; Alberta, 10,745; British Columbia, 12,103; Yukon and Northwest Territories, 47.

Shipyard Men To Work Again

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (CP)—Workers at the Canadian Vickers Ltd. shipyard here, on strike for higher wages since August 19, Tuesday voted unanimously to accept a new contract and to return to work Wednesday.

Gerard Picard, president of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, to which the workers belong, said 20 workers before the courts for acts or threats of violence during the strike, have reached a private agreement with the company regarding return to work. Terms of their agreement were not announced.

The new contract calls for a wage increase of 12 cents an hour with eight cents retroactive to April 1 last.

CITIES WITH SMOG HAVE GOOD DEFENSE AGAINST ATOM BOMB

TORONTO, Oct. 29 (BUP)—Scientists finally found an excuse for smog today. They said it was one of the best defenses against an atomic bomb. Experts meeting in a Canadian civil defense forum here said a murky smoky atmosphere cuts down on heat radiation from the bomb. Kyle Laughlin, director of fire services of the U.S. federal civil defense administration, said adding dust and smoke to city air actually is being considered as a defense measure.

Dr. E. E. Massey of the Defense Research Board in Ottawa said cities with heavy smog, like Toronto and Hamilton, or frequent fog, like Halifax, are among the safest in Canada in the event of an atomic attack. Dr. Massey said a clear atmosphere produces the best conditions for use of atomic bombs.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

The dog Punch—who seems to be in an anti-cat mood these days—has drawn my attention to the fact that National Cat Week is coming soon.

He has suggested the slogan "a cat for every dog, and let the best animal win."

When I told Punch that the idea of cat week was to be kind to cats, he growled: "Well, why not carry this to its logical conclusion? After cat week, why not mouse week?"

You know, I think Punch has something there. I can see the slogans now: "Be Nice to Mice." "Don't be a mouse—protect the mouse." And "Keep your trap shut—this is national mouse week."

It's a little late, but I still like the tale of the English teacher at one of the high schools, who took a small radio to school.

He hooked it up in the classroom, and told the students he wished to discuss comparative diction, and would use the announcers to illustrate.

Whereupon the teacher and the class settled back to hear the smooth diction of various announcers describing the world series.

An alleged friend of mine informs me that, in the event of a democratic victory next week, Mr. Eisenhower will no doubt say he'd rather be Dwight than president.

H.M.C.S. Athabaskan slipped away to Korea this morning. Most of her crew left something behind in Victoria: A pint of blood.

The Red Cross Blood Clinic was more than 100 pints short at Tuesday's clinic. And Athabaskan's crew is too busy to return and attend today's clinic, or Thursday's clinic. The Red Cross hopes YOU aren't too busy.

The Toronto Globe and Mail carries a large advertisement for a salesman, as follows:

"TOP PRODUCER SALESMAN"
Required by large distributor of quality floor coverings to cover the districts of Toronto and Hamilton.
The party we look for must have connections and proven sales ability.

And one heck of a big supply of carpet tacks.

Personal note to a certain young man who asked me a question about Uncle Bob's biggest pumpkin contest:

No, you can NOT enter Don Wilson. That would be unfair competition.

It must be very frustrating to be a censor.

The censors working for the United Nations in Korea carefully blue-pencil all references to individual units of army, navy, or air force. The correspondents on the scene may refer only to "U.N. troops."

Thus Bill Boss, reporting the progress of the fighting in the Little Gibraltar area, states only that "U.N. Forces" are engaged.

But the veil of secrecy is rather thin, because the paper always runs Bill Boss's by-line followed by the phrase "With the Canadian Forces in Korea."

Ever hear of a burglar using a pound of butter as a "tool" for breaking and entering a house? Believe it or not, that happened here Tuesday night.

Albert E. Newberry, 249 Wildwood, informed police at 2:20 this morning an attempt had been made to enter his home.

Detectives Bill Richards and Louis Callan found a small window alongside the front door had been smashed—and the weapon used to break the glass was found to be a package of butter.

Pemberton Parkland Will Be Preserved, Warren States

Proposed subdivision in the Pemberton Woods Park area will provide an acre more park area than at present, according to Parks Administrator W. H. Warren.

He told City Council park committee today the present park is a fraction over three acres. There will be four acres under the new plan.

There are ample trees in the semi-wild area, which will be "just across the street" from the existing park, he said.

Parks committee will recommend to City Council Thursday that a referendum on institution of a Victoria board of park commissioners be put to the electorate in December.

$9,000 Collected For Wenatchee Ball

WENATCHEE, Wash., Oct. 29 (AP)—A baseball fans' committee, raising funds to retain the Western International League franchise in Wenatchee, reported today it had $9,000 toward the $20,000 goal.

Al Libke, former Seattle, Hollywood and Cincinnati player, is chairman of the committee. He said a Nov. 12 deadline had been set for the drive for the other $11,000.

A vaudeville show and rally are scheduled for the night of Nov. 5.

Wenatchee has been a W.I.L. member since the league was formed in 1937.

A rate boost from the present flat $1,000 a year charged the federal government to eight cents per 1,000 gallons of water from Elk Lake, will be recommended to city council.

Diminutive Demons Eager for Revelry

Witches and goblins will have their fling of the year on All Hallow's Eve, when ghostly revelries will disturb the vigil prior to All Saints' Day.

Driver Unscathed In Malahat Wreck

Car Plunges Over Embankment to Drop 50 Feet Through Heavy Brush

A Parksville man miraculously escaped with only a few bruises Tuesday night when the 1948 sedan he was driving was totally wrecked in a plunge off the Island Highway on Goldstream hill.

Five other persons were injured, none seriously, in three of four accidents on the city streets between 7:20 and 11:55 p.m., police reported. Vehicles were damaged in two Saanich accidents during the night.

R.C.M.P. highway patrol said Lloyd G. Wiley, Parksville, driving up-Island, had a blow-out on Goldstream Hill.

His car careened over to the left side of the road, crashed through a railing, and plunged 40 to 50 feet, smashing into trees and through brush before stopping.

CYCLIST INJURED
Motorcycle rider Terry V. Smith, 350 Dallas, was reported to be in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital with abrasions to the left ankle and left arm and a deep cut on the forehead received when his bike was in collision with a car at Yates and Government at 11:55 p.m. City traffic officers said the car was driven by John G. Ticknor, 585 John Street.

THREE HURT
Three persons were hurt in a Johnson-Catherine Street two-car collision at 10:35 p.m.

Donald R. Cozens, 26, of 607 Yates, driver of one of the cars, was reported to be in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital. He suffered a possible fractured left arm and shock.

City officers said the Cozens' car was in collision with one driven by William Gillette, 21, of 1510 Belcher. Soldier Gillette and his army buddy, Jule Anderson 31 were treated at the same hospital for more hurts and then released.

Police said both cars were heavily damaged. Motorcycle David D. Wright, 734 Wilson, suffered injuries to the right foot, when his machine was in collision at 7:20 p.m. with a car at Wilson and Mary Streets. Officers said the bike was in collision with a car driven by William S. Boughney, 414 Dundas.

HEAVY DAMAGE
Police said damage was extensive, but no one was hurt, when cars driven by Charles R. Medley, 2129 Belmont, and Isabel M. Mackenzie, 1017 Linden, met in collision at 7:27 p.m. at Cook and Pandora.

Drivers also escaped injury in a Saanich accident in which $400 vehicle damage was done Tuesday. Cars driven by Edward L. Kelpin, 676 Island Highway, and Herbert J. Wheeler, Kayebert Place, Royal Oak, met in collision at Saanich Road and Lodge Avenue police said.

Saanich officers said damage was light when a truck overturned at Hastings and Wilkinson at 10 p.m. Tuesday. Driver was Fred W. J. White, 1424 Edgeware.

Judge Finds L.R.B. Erred On Union's Certification

B.C.'s Labor Relations Board placed a wrong interpretation on certain clauses of the provincial labor code when it granted certification to the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union of Vancouver to bargain for, zone office employees of Canada Safeway, Limited.

This is the view of Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran, of B.C. Court of Appeal, who today handed down his reasons for quashing certification of the union, given by the labor board March 24 of this year.

Mr. Justice O'Halloran held the labor board acted "unjudicially and in a manner not authorized by the statute."

Main point of contention in the case was whether the zone office workers were employed in a confidential capacity. Confidential employees, under the L.C.A. Act, are exempt from union membership.

During the course of considering the application for certification, the Labor Relations Board conceded that "in the strict sense" the workers were handling matters of a confidential nature.

But the board concluded that modern business practice required a broader approach, and therefore rejected what it described as the "strict approach."

Mr. Justice O'Halloran holds that the board erred in coming to this conclusion.

HOUSE RESPONSIBILITY
"In my judgment," he said, "the language (of the act) must be read in the way the Legislature used it, and if it is to be construed or qualified then it is for the Legislature and the Legislature alone to do so."

Further along he said: "Once any rational degree of confidentiality is shown to exist, then the statutory exclusion is complied with."

"If the board in a case like the present invoked its generalized belief to override the clear facts in evidence before it, then in my judgment, with respect, it has allowed extraneous considerations to mislead its judgment in the 'teeth of the evidence', and thus in error; to exercise a jurisdiction which does not rest upon a true foundation."

Before the case came to Appeal Court, it was heard by Chief Justice Wendell Farris in Supreme Court, who ruled that the board's decision was in order, and should be upheld.

Sad Hands Flutter Fond Farewell As Band Plays Athabaskan to War

By MONTE ROBERTS

A small, quiet, reflective group of friends and relatives watched solemnly as the slim, grey ship wearing the numerals "219" slipped from her berth at H.M.C. Dockyard at 10 a.m. today—and headed for her third tour of duty in the Korean war zone.

H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, with new officers and crew to serve her, will spend at least a year away from her home base of Esquimalt. The dockside "buzz" has it that the ship itself may be away even longer, while her crew is rotated at the end of the year.

There was little sign of emotion, either on deck or dock, as the ship slowly turned in the harbor and pointed her sharp bow toward the war zone. Dockyard has become accustomed to the arrivals and departures of Korean service destroyers (seven out, six home), and relatives of the men appear to have a sense of inevitability which precludes sorrow or excitement.

"Athab" will make port at Pearl Harbor on her way east, and will have her final work-ups with units of the U.S. fleet based there. Ten days later she will leave for her duties in the Orient.

Meanwhile, Canada Savings Bond officials announced this morning that Athabaskan is "top ship" in the Pacific fleet, in purchase of bonds. The ship's quota was $14,000, and her officers and men subscribed for $25,000 worth of bonds.

Naval photographer C.P.O. Norman Keizere has been assigned to the ship to take a motion picture record of her winter patrol activities. He has covered every Korean arrival and departure, but this will be his first time in the war zone.

Athabaskan also carries three veterans with a service record to equal her own. P.O. Fred Wood, P.O. Hal Zerbin and A.B. John Kobayashi are returning for their third tours.

P.G.E. Veteran to Resign With Forging of New Link

James M. Stewart, 69, chief engineer and a director of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway, has submitted his resignation, it was learned today.

His retirement comes on the eve of the opening of the P.G.E. extension from Quesnel to Prince George—the link he master-

Saanich Sewage Workers Win Group's Support

A recommendation will be made to Saanich Council that all sewage workers be placed under the same wage agreement as other municipal employees, Councilor Leslie Passmore, chairman of the municipal sewage committee, said today.

Mr. Passmore said the recommendation will be made by the sewage committee which is negotiating a working agreement with sewage workers. The two parties met Tuesday and arrived at a tentative agreement, the councillor said.

The councillor said he was of the opinion the council will accept the recommendation of the committee.

Games, costume parades and Halloween contests will be the feature attractions for the indoor entertainment, while bonfires and fireworks will provide the outdoor fun.

One of the largest bonfires will be at Oak Bay Fire Hall. Firemen are busy making up bags of candy and preparing fireworks. The Homesteaders' Orchestra will provide music, while apples, and soft drinks, and 2,000 hot dogs will contribute to the final success.

Fire Chief Ed Clayards said the party will start with the "firing up" at 7 p.m. Co-sponsors are Oak Bay Kiwanians.

At the same time a party will be staged by Victoria West Community Club at Banfield Park, Craigflower Road, with a bonfire, fancy dress parade, and refreshments for the children.

Remains of Highway Sawmills Ltd. mill at Langford, destroyed by fire this year, will go up in a blaze of glory for the youngsters.

The company has raked all debris from the mill blaze into a huge pile, and the Langford Volunteer Fire Department will light the fire in time to have it blazing well by 7 p.m.

Refreshments will be served to youngsters in the fire hall.

St. Luke's Next Production for Drama Festival

Next stage production of the St. Luke's Players, "The Holly and the Ivy," will be produced as an entry in next year's Dominion Drama Festival, Mrs. Flora Nicholson, group organizer, announced today.

The presentation uses a modern theme and employs as its main characters, the family of an English parson. Written by Winward Browne, it is a comparatively new play, first enacted in England in 1950.

Mrs. Nicholson explained that any group entering the Dominion Drama Festival competition must have produced at least one three-act play the last 12 months. An adjudicator from Vancouver will attend the Victoria production on a date to be announced and the players will perform at a B.C. Drama Festival in February, if they qualify.

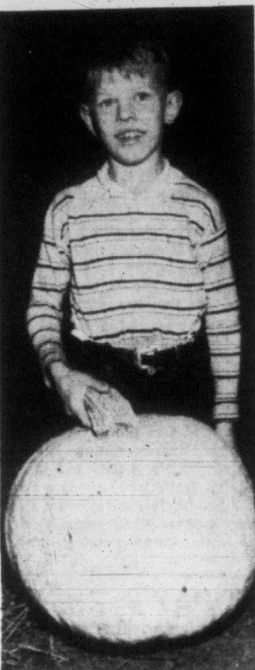

The Dominion Drama Festival finals will be held in the Royal Victoria Theatre here in May, when finalists of 13 divisions across Canada will compete.

Mrs. Nicholson announced that although the troupe was slated to present the last performance of "The Glass Menagerie" on Thursday, 8 p.m., at St. Luke's Parish Hall, another performance will be given on Friday night at 8, also in the parish hall. The latter performance is under the auspices of the Saanich Progressive Conservative Association.

Tickets may be obtained at the door or at Fletcher's Music Store.

$50 FINE

Mohan Singh, 1217 Johnson, was fined $50 and $250 costs in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to file an income tax return on time.

Cinderella Size

This is the last day for entries in The Times' pumpkin contest. Sidney Turnbull, with his competitive pumpkin of more than four feet in girth, has a good chance for one of the cash prizes, totalling $25. He has hushed his pumpkin hopefully at his Broadmead Street home garden. Sidney is eight years old. If anyone still wants to enter the Times' contest he'll have to move fast. Just address entries to Uncle Bob, The Times, Victoria. Uncle Bob would like to know how the pumpkin was grown and tended. And the game is open, he says, to anyone who reads The Times.

T.L.C. Submits Nominees for Labor Board

Provincial executive of the Trades and Labor Congress has submitted to the government the names of three men as candidates for the Labor Relations Board vacancy caused by the resignation of George A. Wilkinson, A.F.L. board member.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said today they are W. T. McLaughlin, Victoria, government conciliation officer; Thomas Dunlop, Vancouver, retired member of the Street Railwaymen's Union, and Evan King, Vancouver, business agent, B.C. Electric Employees' Association.

A choice will be made soon, the minister said. Mr. Wicks explained that the appointment will be only for the remainder of Mr. Wilkinson's five-year term-Jan. 1, 1953.

THREE OTHERS
The minister also has three other candidates for the position, but they are not the official nominations of the T.L.C. It is likely the choice will be made from one of the three T.L.C. nominees.

Others are Roy Wootton, Victoria, business agent, Vancouver Island Civic Council; Harry Berger, Vancouver, International Union of Operating Engineers, and E. Orchin, Victoria, Machinists, Fitters and Helpers Union.

TORIES TO MEET
Oak Bay Progressive Conservatives will meet next Tuesday in St. Mary's Hall, Yale Street, to hear reports from delegates who attended the recent provincial party meeting, and to make plans for the forthcoming visit here of national leader George Drew. The meeting will commence at 8 p.m.

Lamp Shade Cover Slips Off Frame To Be Washed

By PENNY SAVER

Boy oh boy! How economical can you get? Now they have lamp shades that you wisk off their frames, wash, and replace. Done as easily as one, two, three.

The covers come with a specially designed frame and are made of heavy quality silk with elastic at top and bottom, also a contrasting cord to give it a finished look.

Made to order for modern housekeeping. Each shade has a lining which throws the light down and doesn't let it escape through the material—adds beauty to your lamp, too.

The boudoir shades which sell for $1.98, for eight-inch size, and $2.49 for 10-inch size, come in pink, blue, white, rose and pale green.

The 13-inch bridge shade, and 14-inch table size, sell for $3.95; 16-inch table shade, $4.50; 18-inch, $4.95; 20-inch, $5.50; and junior trillite, $5.95.

These shades come in grey, Chinese red, chartreuse, forest green, egg shell, wine and gold.

Covers without the frame sell at about 25 per cent less.

Just think, if you want a change of color scheme all you have to do is slip off one lamp shade cover and replace it with another.

There's something new and extraordinary in curtains waiting for your approval.

When before have you been able to buy lace-net curtains, 27 inches wide and 81 inches long, at 97 pennies each?

I bet you haven't found a bargain like this for a good many years.

Give these curtains the proper care and they will last for years. They are made of fine quality rayon yard. Hemmed and headed—ready to hang.

Don't wash them in washing machine!

Instead, wash them by hand in lukewarm suds and while curtain is still damp hang on curtain rod and insert a rust-proof weighted rod in bottom hem. Use rods of uniform weight in all curtains. When they are dried you'll find that the curtains don't require ironing.

Another style rayon-lace curtain, 42 inches wide and 81 inches long sells at $1.69 each. This one only comes in ivory whereas the others come in ivory, rose, blue and green.

Stick Out Marriage; A.A. May Solve Problem

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

The wife who is reaching middle-age is in a bad position when her home and marriage are ready to break up. Should she try to keep them together is the question this woman is asking for her friend.

Hurlock

"Q" "I am writing for a friend of mine. She has been married 30 years and has a married daughter. Her husband has a good, steady job and makes money. But he is a heavy drinker. He doesn't give her money and she has a part-time job to buy her own needs. He comes home drunk and calls her names. He tells her if she doesn't like it to leave. She has left him several times but he begs her to come back. He promises to change but once she's home, he starts all over again. She loves her home and hates to leave it, but she is becoming a nervous wreck. What should she do?"

(A) Tell your friend to stick it out. It is too late now to change the whole pattern of her life. If she left her husband, what would she do with herself? Her married daughter may give her a home but this would not be the same as her own.

Perhaps she could persuade him to join Alcoholics Anonymous, an organization that helps those who want to stop drinking but find it hard. Her doctor or minister could help her contact A.A. and arrange to have one of the members see her husband.

That could be her bargain if he wants her to return to him. A middle-aged man is no more anxious to be alone, without a home or wife, than is a woman. When he discovers that his home is at stake, he may have the necessary desire to pull himself together.

Of course such behavior makes a woman nervous. But if your friend takes a firm stand, she can control the situation.

If you have a problem about family or friend, ask Dr. Hurlock to help you. Write in care of this newspaper.

Congratulating Gordon Verley, right, president of the newly-formed Victoria branch of the Sales Executive Club of North America is G. J. Selling Knits Economy City Executives Told Selling is the core of our entire economy, G. J. Ticoulat of San Francisco, vice-president of the National Sales Executive Club, told members of the newly-formed Victoria branch of the continent-wide organization here Tuesday.

He presented the city club with its charter at a reception in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel attended by sales executives representing 30 leading Victoria firms.

Mr. Ticoulat, who is a vice-president of Crown Zellerbach Corporation, major United States newsprint producer, pointed out that sales management men must supply goods and provide jobs.

Most workers can't create their own jobs, he said. The man who helps build a stove or an automobile has employment only when the sales force is selling

Chamber Group Fights For Public's Beaches

The provincial government will be asked to preserve beaches which now fronts on city beaches. He suggested these areas should be public parks.

After further discussion the meeting unanimously adopted a motion to make representations to the British Columbia government on the subject.

The city's waterfront beauty spots should be kept open for public use by Victoria residents and visitors, she declared.

"It is a tragic mistake," she contended, "in this country, where so much magnificent land is available, to lose the best spots in our cities to individual owners."

THE CAINE MUTINY

SYNOPSIS

(Ensign Willie Seward Keith faced a trial. Posted to the minesweeper U.S.S. Caine he had arrived at Honolulu to find her gone and had been reported to the officer in command of the ship, a circumstance he owed to his prowess as an ensign. He was the only one who had seen the ship before she was sunk.)

(He opens a letter his father had handed to him before he left New York with instructions not to open it until he was on board the Caine. Willie opened the letter, since apparently he was permanently placed at Honolulu, and was horrified to read his father's dying message. A cable home confirmed his father's death three days earlier.)

(Shocked, Willie asked to be posted aboard the Caine and after some weeks he realized his ambition, only to find the ship a shambles and the crew a collection of officers and a crew which appeared to have lost all sense of discipline and traditional navy standards.)

Tenth installment from the book THE CAINE MUTINY, copyright 1951, by Herman Wouk. Distributed by Doubleday Syndicate.

CHAPTER VII

Willie planned to sleep after lunch. He was longing for sleep with every cell of his body. But it was not to be. He and Harding were collared after coffee by the "vegetable" with a face, Ensign Carmody.

"Captain de Vries says for me to take you two on a tour of the ship. Come along."

He dragged them for three hours up and down ladders, and across teetering catwalks, and through narrow scuttles. They went from broiling engine spaces to icy clammy bilges. They splashed in water and slipped on grease and scratched themselves on metal projections. Willie saw everything through a reddish haze of fatigue. He retained only a confused memory of innumerable dark holes cluttered with junk or machines or beds, each hole with a novel odor imposed on the pervading smells of mildew, oil, paint, and hot metal. Carmody's thoroughness was explained when he mentioned that he was an Annapolis man, class of '43, the only regular officer aboard beside the captain and exec.

At dinner that evening there were three officers at the wardroom table including the captain. The rest were off on shore leave. Willie and Harding took chairs at the lower end of the long white cloth and began eating in silence. The others ignored them and made incomprehensible jokes among themselves about things that had happened at Guadalcanal and New Zealand and Australia. Lieutenant Maryk was the first to glance their way. He was burly, round-faced, and pug-nose-looking, about twenty-five, with a prison haircut. "You guys look kind of red-eyed," he said.

Willie said, "We were caulking off for a few minutes in the clip shack."

"Nothing like caulking off to start your career right," the captain said to a pork chop, out of which he took a large bite.

"Kind of hot in there, isn't it?" said Adams, the gunnery officer. Lieutenant Adams wore fresh prim khakis. He had the long aristocratic face and negligent superior look which Willie had seen often at Princeton. It meant good family and money.

"Kind of," Harding said meekly. Maryk turned to the captain.

"Sir, that doggone clip shack is over the engine room. These guys'll fry in there."

"Ensigns are expendable," the captain said.

"What I mean, sir, I think I could hang a couple of bunks just as easy in Adams' and Gorton's room or even in here over the couch."

"The hell with that," Adams said.

"Isn't that a hull modification, Steve?" the captain said, chewing pork. "You'd have to get permission from BuShips."

"I can look it up, sir, but I don't think it is."

"Well, when you get around to it. The shipfitters are way behind as it is." Captain de Vries glanced at the ensigns. "Do you gentlemen think you can survive a week or two in the clip shack?" Willie was tired, and the sargasm irritated him. "Nobody's complaining," he said.

De Vries raised his eyebrows and grinned. "That's the spirit, Mr. Keith."

Towards the end of his first four-to-eight watch Willie was profoundly grateful to see Lieutenant Adams come out of the wardroom hatchway, rubbing his eyes. "How's it going, Keith?"

"No, sir."

"Let's inspect the lines."

He walked around the ship with Willie, kicking the manilla ropes that tied the Caine to the next destroyer. "This number-three line needs chafing gear, the chock is rubbing, Tell Engstrand."

Engstrand was the first class signalman assigned to Willie's watch. "Yes, sir—Mr. Adams, frankly I had a hell of a time keeping the guards and the messenger from flaking out."

Adams grinned wryly, then his face became long and stern. "That's damned serious."

"They didn't seem to think so."

Adams pursed his lips and stopped to light a cigarette, leaning against the life lines. "Tell you what, Keith. You've got something to contend with. This ship has been in the forward area since March '42. It's been through a lot of action. The men are all Asiatic. They probably think a faint watch in Pearl Harbor is foolishness. The trouble is the skipper thinks so, too. It's the port director's orders, so we post the guards. You've just got to bear down."

"What actions were you in, sir?"

"About everything. Marshalls raid, Coral Sea—first Savo, second Savo—Rendova, Munda."

"What were you doing—mine-sweeping?"

"Who ever heard of a mine-sweeper minesweeping? Mostly we ran av-gas for the marine fliers at Henderson Field. Ran torpedoes up from New Zealand. That was a happy day, live torpedoes lashed all over the deck and getting strafed. Ran dog-faces up to relieve the Marines on Guadal. Ran convoys all over the ocean. Supply scow, troop transport, screen, mail carrier, or what dirty job have you? That's the Caine. So if she's a little run down, you know why."

"A little run down is putting it politely," said Willie.

Adams straightened up, glared at him, threw his cigarette into the water, and walked aft. Over the loudspeaker came the chirp of the boatswain's pipe, then the words, "Reveille for all hands. Reveille." Adams snapped over his shoulder. "Check reveille in the after crew's quarters. Keith. Make sure they're all out of their sacks."

"Aye, aye, sir."

Willie decided that he had better guard his mouth. Adams and the other officers had been aboard the Caine so long, they must be blind to the fact that it was a filthy wreck. They might even be proud of the ship. He swore to himself that he would be different. He would keep perspective, and he would never rest until, one way or another, he had gotten himself off the Caine. He set six months as his limit. After all, there was an admiral who was fond of him.

An hour later, as Willie toiled over a decoding device spread out on the wardroom table, the letters suddenly became a blur. The wardroom jerked back and forth, and began to rotate gently. His head fell on his hands. The fact that Lieutenant Maryk was reading official mail at the table beside him made no difference. He was done in.

He heard the opening of a door, and then the captain's voice: "Well, well. Siesta time for Ensign Keith."

He did not dare raise his head. "Sir," he heard Maryk say, "that clip shack is no place to sleep. The kid is shot."

"Kind of ripe in port, but it'll be fine under way. Hell, Maryk, this boy's had four months' temporary in Pearl. Like to know how the hell he arranged it. He ought to have soaked up enough sleep to go without for a month."

The captain's voice was mocking and cruel. It filled Willie with rage. What right had De Vries to be so mighty and hot? De Vries was the man who permitted all the filth and sloth of the Caine, for which he deserved a court-martial. He seemed to reserve all his energies for baiting ensigns. Willie's accumulated resentment, weariness, and disgust coagulated at that moment into hatred of Captain de Vries. The ship was the measure of the commanding officer. He had fallen into the hands of a bullying stupid sloven. He gritted his teeth, and as soon as De Vries was gone he pulled himself erect and resumed decoding with new energy released by hate.

That night Willie found himself being shaken out of his sleep. He opened his eyes and looked into the face of Paynter. "Whassamatter now?" he mumbled.

"Message to be broken, Keith."

"What time is it?"

"Quarter past three."

"Cripes, can't it wait till morning?"

"Nope. Caine is information addressee. Any message where we're an addressee is busted at once. Captain de Vries' orders."

"De Vries," snarled Willie. "De Vries. Why doesn't the Navy send him back to high school to mature?"

"Come on, Keith."

"Pal, let someone else break it. I'm too tired to see."

"Assistant communicator always handles these night breaks," said Paynter, "as I know only too well. Come on, Keith. I've got to get back to the gangway."

Mr. Justice Coady Approves Damage Claim Settlements

Mr. Justice James M. Coady Tuesday in Supreme Court Chambers gave formal approval to three out-of-court settlements reached in personal injury damage claims.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Webster, of Port Alberni, are to receive $736.92 as compensation for injuries received by their 16-year-old daughter Maureen, who suffered a sprained ankle, cuts and bruises when involved in an accident on the Island Highway, near Port Alberni, on Sept. 29, 1951.

The claim was against Carl Olson, driver of the car in which the girl was a passenger. Under terms of another settlement, Mrs. Madge Wall, Victoria, mother of Miss Eunice Wall, 19, will receive $500 for injuries received by the girl in December, 1950, when struck by a Victoria Van and Storage Company truck driven by John Lesyk.

In the third case, it was specified that Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Knight, Nanaimo, would be paid $1500 as settlement for injuries received by their eight-year-old son, Terrence, who was hurt in an auto accident last Nov. 25 at Nanos Bay. The child was a passenger in a commercial vehicle driven by Harry Ratcliffe.

Japanese Vessel Loading For British Lumber Mart

By MONTE ROBERTS
Times Marine Reporter

Ss. Shoyo Maru, another unit in Japan's growing postwar merchant marine, is lifting lumber at Ogden Point today.

But the B.C. lumber—mostly ties—is not bound for Japan. Its destination is the United Kingdom.

When Japan received the green light on her shipbuilding program in 1949, the first ships were intended as carriers to shuttle across the Pacific, carrying materials needed in the aid program to Japan.

By 1951, a family of ships—including Shoyo Maru—had been launched and put to work in the waters between North America and the Orient. Their cargoes to Japan were mainly foodstuffs and iron ore.

But once Japan was allowed to commence building, her yards hummed, and she soon got her annual building rate up to 600,000 tons of new shipping.

Now she has over 50 new, 16-knot freighters like Shoyo Maru, as well as smaller, slower ships, and she is looking for trampings jobs to keep them working.

At the end of the Second World War, Japan had only six sea-going ships. Terms of surrender forbade her to build ships over 5,000 tons and faster than 11 knots. Since this decision was reversed in 1949, as part of a policy to help Japan help herself, she has added more than 40 fine, fast ships to her fleet.

Now the Japanese shipping companies advertise 23 sailings each month to Southeast Asia, the U.S. (including the busy Tokyo-New York run) and Africa.

They are aiming for an even bigger fleet and more frequent schedules, as well as competition for tramp cargoes.

Shoyo Maru and her hard-working sisters are giving the shipping companies of other nations something to think about.

A Sidney youth is now in isolation at Royal Jubilee Hospital, following diagnosis of his case as poliomyelitis, Sanich medical health authorities reported today.

DAMAGES AWARDED

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 29 (AP).—Trumpeter John Birks (Dizzy) Gillespie Tuesday night was awarded $1,000 for injuries suffered Aug. 5, 1949, when his bicycle was overturned by a car. A jury decided that Gillespie's injuries contributed to a feeling of "blacking out" and dizziness when he attempts to reach high notes on his trumpet. The damages were assessed against Joachim Machbar of Detroit.

SO MANY PLAY SO WELL FOR SO FEW

York Theatre's Ambitious Show Fine Vehicle for Capable Cast

By DAVE STOCK

It takes all kinds of things for a show to be a hit. So many things can go wrong.

Last night Victoria's new York Theatre Company staged its second production, an ambitious undertaking titled "Thunder Rock." Actors, directors, scenery makers, soundmen and electricians of the company bent every effort to pour into the two-hour 20-minute show all the ingredients at their disposal for making a hit.

Yet something was wrong. No matter how good a show may be, it is not a hit unless there's a large audience. That was what was wrong.

There were 680 seats vacant in the theatre. The enthusiastic response given the production by the 132 fortunate people there could hardly cope with all that empty space. The odds were just too heavy.

The small audience was, to this reviewer, the only disappointing thing about the entire show.

A gripping drama concerned with a young man's struggle to face and reassess the world from which cynicism has caused him to attempt escape. "Thunder Rock" is a vehicle which gives actors a real chance to show their skills.

COMMENDED CHOICE

Far different it is from the gay, farcical "Curtain Up," which production was chosen as the new company's initial offerings to local theatregoers. Those responsible for selection of "Thunder Rock" for this second production are to be commended for an excellent choice.

Dewey Harless scored tremendously as David Charleston, former newspaperman who, at age 36, seeks to cut himself from the world about him by taking a job as keeper of Thunder Rock Lighthouse on a tiny, isolated island in Lake Michigan.

On stage practically the entire time, his emotions turned evenly from those of the hard cynic to those of a man with faith who is eager to do good in the world.

Excellent support was given by Robert Tabor who depicted Charleston's old college friend, Streeter, an adventurous flyer.

Outstanding as dead people from an 1849 shipwreck who come alive in Charleston's imagination were: Alexander Gray, a wise and sober Captain Joshua; youthful Michael Rothery, as a middle-aged Birmingham potter in the last stages of consumption; and Karen Kadler, a new member of the company from Vancouver, portraying Melanie, a young immigrant girl of French-Austrian parentage. Her accent was particularly good.

Special mention should be made of stage director Ian Thorne, who, at the last moment, stepped into the play as Inspector Flanning, of the government lighthouse service. Filling in for Peter Perrin, who took sick shortly before curtain time, Thorne did a remarkable job.

Also good were Vivienne Chadwick, as the English spinster and discouraged leader of suffragettes and Gordon Matthews, as Dr. Stefan Kurtz. Lesser parts were taken by Monica Durley, the doctor's wife, and Maurice Corbett, an air-cargo freight handler.

Bill Low, appearing as a guest artist, was a happy choice for the part of Chang, a near-sighted Chinese air gunner. His only word was "okay," but he made the most of it.

Set for the entire play, the interior of the Thunder Rock Lighthouse, was impressive. It was designed by Director Thorne and June Gillespie. Sound effects, providing crashing waves and howling gales, added to the realism.

"Thunder Rock" will be presented again tonight and for another seven days. A matinee will be given Saturday at 2.30.

(OSCAR CLASS) TALES OF HOFFMAN (Royal)—Never, in my opinion, have the films risen to such great artistic heights as in Britain's "Tales of Hoffman." One must not necessarily have to be a disciple of the ballet or a lover of opera to perceive genius in this exquisite interpretation of the works of Germany's E. T. W. Hoffmann through the haunting, moving music of composer Jacques Offenbach.

Nor is it the stars themselves that leave one with the feeling that you have witnessed a major celluloid miracle. The music is the music of Sir Thomas Beecham and that is wonderful; there is the interpretive, breathless dancing of ballerina, tawny-haired Moira Shearer; there is the magnificent singing of Robert Rounseville and other stars of similar magnitude. But the true genius lives in two men who are never seen on the stage—Britain's producer-writer team of amiable Michael Powell, and quiet, pipe-smoking Emeric Pressburger.

The greatness of "Tales of Hoffman" lies more with these two men than with anyone else. It is their parcelling of the stars into some of the most beautiful and yet, weirdest, maddest conception of photographic ballet and set scenery I have ever beheld. An example: Moira Shearer, the clockwork puppet who has to be wound up, suddenly being smashed to pieces. In the end her "alive" head rolls on the floor, springs breaking through in a Dali-like canvas.

Then there are the montage effects, where one scene rolls through another with startling difference that leaves one wondering if the opium pipe is at hand and, if so, one more puff or two couldn't possibly make a dream world more unreal.

"Tales of Hoffman" is the epitaph to British film genius, to its photographic art combining with all else the incomparable talents of the make-up artist and the artistry of the set-makers.

In addition to Miss Shearer who plays Giulietta the Venetian Courtesan; Ann Ayars, as Antonia the consumptive singer, Leonide Massine and Robert Helpman are as outstanding as the whole. Surely I can give no higher praise than that.

Victoria Auditorium Project Gets Support

Support for a civic auditorium project for Victoria was advocated by the tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday.

John Dunbar, local singer, told the meeting Victoria would benefit greatly from such a project as an attraction for visitors. An auditorium was sorely needed, he said, since present premises available for local shows cost too much. This limits development of theatrical attractions in the city.

He cited the Winnipeg auditorium, which includes an art gallery and museum, as an excellent example of how a major city benefits from a cultural centre. The civic auditorium there has paid for itself, he said.

Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Victoria M.L.A., voiced strong approval of such a project. She said, however, "It's no earthly use merely passing resolutions about it. We need action."

G. Conway Parrott, chairman of the tourist group, said in adopting the motion favoring a civic auditorium, that his group would study the project closely to see what practical support could be undertaken.

Another member of the tourist group, Wallace Courtenay, pointed out that the population of Victoria has now grown to around 120,000. "The time has certainly come," he said, "for a city of this size to have its own civic auditorium."

NOTE! We suspend our usual program of motion pictures until Thursday, owing to showing of "Tales of Hoffman."

Why is breakfast so important?

A good breakfast does more than contribute to your general health. It helps you work better, feel more alert and be more efficient all morning. Many breakfast foods are important. But the real mainstay should always be a nourishing whole-grain cereal. First among these of course is Red River Cereal . . . a careful blend of cracked wheat, rye and whole flax (a mild regulator). It tastes delicious and makes a valuable contribution to your dietary needs. Include it often in your breakfast planning.

What is a good breakfast?

You can make dozens of different, attractive, balanced meals with the popular breakfast foods. Try to include orange or grapefruit juice, fresh fruit, a cooked whole-grain cereal, milk, jam or marmalade and egg or bacon.

Try these menus for example:

One whole orange. Serving of Red River Cereal with milk or cream. Whole wheat toast with butter or margarine and egg or bacon.

Soldier's Christmas Can't Wait for Tardy

By ROY THORSEN
If you are planning on sending Christmas parcels to the boys overseas, Germany and the Far East, take careful note of the following deadlines for posting:

Parcels and ordinary letters to army personnel in Korea and Japan must reach Vancouver postoffice not later than Nov. 7. Air mail must be in Vancouver by December 14.

Parcels to Canadian troops in Britain and on the European continent must be posted in time to reach Montreal by Nov. 25. Deadline for air mail is Dec. 14 at Montreal.

Local fleet mail office reminds families of naval personnel serving in the Far East to have their Christmas parcels in before Nov. 26. Letters should reach that office by Dec. 5.

Persons sending gift parcels should make certain parcels are properly addressed and fully prepaid. A customs declaration form should be completed and attached to all parcels.

Parcel post weight limit is 10 pounds—four pounds six ounces by air mail. Size and value regulations should be checked at the local postoffice.

Persons planning on sending parcels to the boys in Britain and Germany should take note of changes in customs regulations affecting the shipment of individual parcels to servicemen and their dependents.

National Defense Headquarters at Ottawa has announced that the British Army of the Rhine has now canceled the concession whereby two pounds of coffee or coffee products could be imported duty free into the British Zone of Germany monthly by individual members of the force.

"Ample coffee stocks for unit kitchens and compensating amenities now available to Canadian servicemen through N.A.A.F.I. have eliminated this need," it says in an army letter.

"For some time coffee has been at a very high premium in Germany and there have been cases where the concession to servicemen has been abused."

"Cigarettes, cigars, tobacco and spirits are now available to Canadian servicemen in the U.K. through both unit and N.A.A.F.I. canteens. Because of this, the concession that previously permitted their importation duty free in individual parcels is no longer required."

"Relatives and friends of servicemen in Canada should eliminate these items from future overseas parcels as they will not be permitted clearance through customs," the army letter concludes.

Mount Low in the Kootenay Rockies, named after the explorer A. P. Low, has an altitude of 10,085 feet.

WIRE RADIO TV PROGRAMS PROTESTED

OTTAWA, Oct. 29 (CP)—A manufacturer of radio and television sets has asked for a court ruling against a service which delivers programs to homes by wire.

The Canadian Admiral Corporation of Toronto has initiated a case in the Exchequer Court against Rediffusion Inc., which in some sections of Montreal rents radio and television sets and supplies programs by special wires to subscribers for a weekly fee.

The radio and television industry considers the service a threat to its business, and the Admiral claim is expected to become a test case.

In a statement of claim filed with the court, Admiral said its copyright on telecasting of Montreal Alouettes' football games had been infringed by Rediffusion. Admiral also claimed that newspaper advertisements sponsored by Rediffusion contravened the Unfair Competition Act. The Toronto firm asked for unspecified damages.

Blunder in Bursaries Gives Scholars Boost

A 32-year-old mistake by a Kiwanis Club committee has benefited 32 honor students at Victoria College, Dr. Harry Hickman, principal, told the weekly Kiwanis luncheon meeting Tuesday.

He thanked the Kiwanis club for the annual scholarship award on behalf of this year's winner, Lyle Robertson, 1308 Carsnew Street. He explained that the student had indicated it would go toward completing his education as a nuclear physicist.

The disbursement was on the statutes of the club originally to promote "Kiwanis knowledge education." In error, the first committee offered it as a Victoria College scholarship. Generous Kiwanians allowed the grant to continue, increasing it in fact from $100 to $150 and diverted other funds to education within the Kiwanis club.

Dr. Hickman added that of the 31 earlier recipients, 11 had made

Scots Want Pre-Marital Medical Exams

EDINBURGH, Oct. 29 (Reuters).—A government-appointed committee studying divorce laws on marriage and divorce, set up in Scotland recommended Tuesday that the state provide pre-marital medical examinations and expert advice for engaged couples.

The recommendations were made in a report by the Scottish section of the royal commission on marriage and divorce, set up by the government in August, 1951, to consider whether divorce laws in England and Wales and Scotland should be revised.

The committee said it is against any drastic changes in divorce laws which would spread the idea that "divorce is easier now." But it favors re-examination of existing divorce laws to bring them up-to-date.

Grounds for divorce in Britain are cruelty, adultery or desertion. A wife can obtain a divorce if her husband is found guilty of rape or unnatural vices.

SIXTY-SIX MILLION FEET OF TELEPHONE WIRE ADDED IN VICTORIA

Thousands of Wires Spread Through City in Readiness to Expand Telephone Service

One of the biggest cable projects ever undertaken by the B.C. Telephone Company has been completed in Victoria. It has added more than 66 million feet of wire—most of it underground—to the Victoria telephone system. Thousands of new telephone wires have been spread through the city in readiness to give service to more people as soon as the big addition to the automatic equipment in the central office on Blanshard Street has been completed at a cost of about $500,000. The cable work has cost about $300,000.

Part of the new central office equipment is already in service and technicians are busy installing the remainder of it.

The new underground cables, which are lead sheaths packed with hundreds of fine wires separately wrapped in paper insulation, cover a distance of 20 miles. They are contained in conduits which go east, west, north and south from the telephone office.

The Victoria telephone projects are typical of our Company's record-breaking program of expansion.

3 Win $56,000 Each in Irish

Toronto Couple Wins $28,000
But None Ride Winner Richer

By the Canadian Press

Three Canadians held Irish Sweepstakes tickets on Sunny Brae, which finished second today in the Cambridge-shire run at Newmarket, Eng. They won prizes of $56,000 each.

No Canadian was listed as holding a ticket on Richer, the winner, worth $140,000. But a Toronto couple won $28,000 when Garrison Hack finished third.

Two Ontario residents and one in Moose Jaw, Sask., were the second place winners.

Mrs. Robert Meehan, wife of a storekeeper at Erin, Ont., held a ticket on Sunny Brae under the nom de plume of "Precious Girls," named for her two young daughters.

An unidentified Brantford, Ont., resident, who used the nom de plume "Stymie" held a similar winner.

Geoffrey R. Baskwill of Moose Jaw, manager of the Saskatchewan government woolen mill, held a ticket on Sunny Brae under the nom de plume "Irene."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bardwell of Toronto held a ticket on Garrison Hack.

The 10-to-1 co-favorites, Cap of Gold and Antydrice, finished well back.

Richer was well behind during the early stages of the running, in which Hilltop and Pink Jasper cut out a fast pace on the heavy going.

The eventual winner began to move up at the halfway mark and was nearly even with the leaders three furlongs from home.

Richer shot out of the bunch with two-furlongs to go and easily held off the fast-finishing Sunny Brae.

The winning purse was only $3,846, but the outcome of the race determined millions in bets and prizes.

Holders of Irish sweepstakes tickets on the first three got $140,000, $56,000 and $28,000 respectively.

The race also decided millions in Britain's traditional big betting double. The first leg is the Caesarych, won earlier in the month by a 33-to-1 shot, Flush Royal.

Convicts Turn 3 Guards Free; New Outbreak

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 29 (AP)—Three of the 10 guards held hostage in a series of uprisings at Menard State Prison were released today after a conference between Acting Governor Sherwood Dixon and rebellious convicts in the psychiatric division.

None of the three guards was harmed. They were released after Dixon agreed to permit reporters to listen to complaints by the psychiatric convicts.

Still holding out with seven hostages in another section of the prison, the east cell block, are 332 prisoners who launched the rebellion at the prison Monday.

These inmates tried today to set fire to a tower manned by guards and police. As this was happening, another guard rushed up to warder Jerome Munie and shouted: "What will we do—shoot? We need more help."

Munie ordered no shooting but sent more guards to the area.

The disorder followed a new outbreak of rebellion Tuesday afternoon in the prison's psychiatric division. Most of 300 psychiatric inmates were herded back to cells after storming the kitchen-dining room. But 38 armed themselves with kitchen cutlery, seized three unarmed officers released today as hostages and barricaded themselves in the mess hall.

The angry prisoners in the five-story east cell house have been without water since Monday afternoon. And they have had little food. Their hostages have had no food or water.

St. Lawrence Power Project Is Approved

Joint Commission
Gives Green Light

MONTREAL, Oct. 29 (CP)—The International Joint Commission today announced approval of a $400,000,000 power project under the St. Lawrence seaway and hydro plan.

The Canada-United States power project involving the Ontario government and possibly the New York State Power Authority is part of the $700,000,000 seaway and hydro development.

Application to go ahead with the power phase of the seaway project was made jointly to the International Commission by Canada and the United States.

The Ontario government will act as Canada's agent in the 2,200,000 horse-power hydro project while the New York State Power Authority is expected to be the U.S. government agent.

Announcement of approval for the power plan followed closed executive sessions of the six-man commission Tuesday and today and earlier hearings in Canada and the U.S.

The announcement was made by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and A. O. Stanley, respectively Canadian and United States co-chairmen of the commission.

Under the hydro plan, as approved, the Ontario and New York state governments would share equally the $400,000,000 cost of development of the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River. They would also share power production equally.

Approval of the power phase by the commission left the Canadian government committed to undertake alone the $300,000,000 St. Lawrence navigational plan.

Aim of the navigational plan is to provide a 27-foot waterway for ocean-going ships from Montreal to Lake Erie.

The U.S. Congress has turned down proposals for a joint, sea-way undertaking.

LABOR, SOUTH
MAY HOLD KEY
IN U.S. VOTE

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

A politically-conscious labor movement and the traditionally "solid" south were seen today as key factors in the U.S. presidential election to be held Tuesday.

Political organizations of the A.F.L., C.I.O. and United Mine Workers—all supporting the Stevenson-Sparkman presidential ticket—are also trying to fill the 35 open senate seats with 34 Democrats.

More than 80 per cent of the top office-holders in the south have rallied behind Adlai Stevenson in his Democratic bid for the presidency, an Associated Press survey showed today.

These political leaders include Dixie governors, U.S. Senators, and members of the House of Representatives who have given their support to the Illinois governor.

Even so, several conspicuous defections offer the possibility that the "solid south" will might hand over some of its prized electoral votes to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Republican standard-bearer.

Abbotsford, Sumas Sites of New Plants

The provincial government has given two companies permission to construct wineries in British Columbia—the first in more than 20 years.

B.C. Wineries Ltd. will build a winery at Sumas, and Pacific Wine Growers at Abbotsford.

The first has been given permission to manufacture 300,000 gallons annually, and the second 100,000 from grapes grown in the province.

The permits will increase the number of B.C. wineries to six. The four existing establishments were operating before the section of the liquor act governing wineries was enacted in 1930. Thus, the province has never actually issued a winery permit before.

The Pacific winery will be operated by Saul, Morris and Nathan Kaganoff, Vancouver, brothers who previously operated a winery in B.C. from 1938 to 1942.

The B.C. winery has as a director Jacob G. Derksen, Vancouver.

CITY MAN LED PATROL

Jack Richardson Hit Five Times

Gallant Sergeant, Now in Hospital, Fought Off Attacks, Helped Casualties, Directed Fire

By BILL BOSS, Canadian Press Staff Writer
WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Oct. 29 (CP)—

The name on everyone's lips when the patrol was over was that of its leader—25-year-old Sgt. John H. Richardson, of 2733 Somass Drive, Victoria.

Richardson, who quit an officers' training course to come to Korea with his unit, fought off one attack, suffered five wounds, fought off a second attack, directed the withdrawal, helped two casualties part of the way and guided artillery and mortar fire being sent down to help the operation.

"Judging from the letter I received from him Tuesday, John is doing alright in the Commonwealth Division hospital in Japan," said a happy mother, Mrs. Helen Richardson, 2733 Somass, today.

She said that her war-hero son is only a bit worried about his hearing. Among the five wounds by shrapnel was a piece of metal that pierced his ear. Mrs. Richardson hopes her son will be returned home after his release from hospital.

The sergeant's letters indicated he had been through a grueling grind of night patrols before the wounding.

The 26-man patrol from the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was out to catch a prisoner on the night of October 15-16.

Instead, they lost two men to the Chinese—the first two Patricia's listed missing in almost two years in Korea.

Richardson's objective was the base of a 600-foot hill 2,800 yards ahead of the Patricia's lines. About 100 yards short of it he paraded them out in two groups.

The first under Cpl. Ed Pachal of Yorkton, Sask., was a fire group to support any attack the other group might make onto the objective. Richardson's party was about 100 yards away from Pachal's.

When I first saw them there were seven, and they were only six or seven feet away," Chute said he felt them all with his Bren gun.

The Chinese weren't discovered until they were in among the Canadians, shooting low.

It was as though the Chinese were determined to get a prisoner, and one able to talk, said Cameron.

"It was really hot and heavy there for five minutes. Their men emptied their burp-gun magazines over and over and our fellows answered the fire whenever they got the chance. It was an old-fashioned fight above the ground."

Richardson, Hastings, Prentice, Johnstone and the signaller—Pte. F. M. Holloway of Vancouver—were wounded.

Pte. C. H. Chute of Bear River, N.S., said:
